78 SIGN NAMES TO PETITION OF ORDINANCE FOES

Many Who Had Signatures Taken Off Referendum to Restore Them

COUNCIL FACES ACTION

Light Rate Question Nears Showdown Stage

HERE'S BOX SCORE

Names needed for vote on light rate ordinance . . . 275.
Names on petitions for referendum . . . 670.
Names removed by utility company petitions . . . 419.
Names restored by ordinance opponents . . . 78.
Names remaining on referendum petitions . . . 329.

Petitions bearing 78 signatures of persons who removed their names from the light rate referendum move and now want them restored were filed with Mayor W. J. Graham, Monday at 8:15 p. m., by Councilman Ben Gordon.

"That puts us above the quota," Mr. Gordon said Tuesday. "These names were obtained from persons who said they were sorry they had removed their names and wanted them, put back."

Counter-petitions bearing 419 names were filed with Mayor Graham last Saturday by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. The signatures were those of persons who wanted their names removed from the original referendum petitions bearing 670 signers.

The "battle of signatures" is centered around the figure 275 which represents 10 percent of the voters at the election in November, 1935.

City council will hold a regular meeting Wednesday night at which time the mayor will present the various petitions he has received. Attorneys say it is the duty of councilmen to determine the legality of the referendum.

T. A. Renick, attorney for those opposed to the ordinance, says the law makes no provision for the removal of signatures from a referendum of this type.

On the assumption that signatures might be legally removed the foes of the rate contract obtained sufficient names to keep the referendum number above 275.

Oak Hill Native Had Served 22 Years as Member of Ohio Tribunal; Successor to Be Democrat

COLUMBUS, Aug. 31.—(UP)—Judge Thomas A. Jones, 78, who had served on the Ohio supreme court for 22 years, died at his home here today.

A Republican, Judge Jones first was elected to the supreme court in 1914 and began his term in January, 1915. His present term would have expired Dec. 31, 1938.

He had been in public life almost continuously since 1885 when he was elected mayor of Jackson, Ohio.

The Ohio supreme court had been Republican, four members to three, until Judge Jones' death. Gov. Martin L. Davey, a Democrat, has the power to appoint Judge Jones' successor and to swing the court's balance to the Democratic side.

DRIVER OF BEER TRUCK CUT WHEN TRAILER WRECKS

A semi-trailer loaded with 500 cases of beer overturned along Route 23, four miles north of South Bloomfield, about 3 a. m. Tuesday. C. L. Withrow, of Charleston, W. Va., driver, escaped with a slight cut on the head. He told Sheriff Charles Radcliff that lights from an approaching auto blinded him and caused him to drive off the highway. The beer was being hauled from Columbus to Charleston.

Autos of O. B. Merriman, 594 Laurel street, Chillicothe, and Frank Hoffman, N. Court street, city, were slightly damaged Monday evening in an auto collision on Court street. No one was hurt.

ELEPHANT ACTS FOR FOOD AFTER BEING STRANDED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 31 (UP)—Mena, a 57-year-old female elephant abandoned by a circus and left stranded with a Pinto pony and her keeper, Jerry Cooper, 35, today was going through her antics for donations of food. Cooper, who herds his charge as the "largest female pachyderm in captivity," said that Jack Hoxie, promoter of the circus had decided that Mena was too expensive a performer and would have to be left behind. Hoxie, a former cowboy motion picture actor, left Cooper $10 to care for the elephant and pony.

"The $10 bought about one meal for the animals, and now I have no money," Cooper said.

KILLERS OF GIRLS TO HEAR DEATH DECREE ORDERED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(UP)—Albert Dyer, who last night told his wife "Goodbye, I'll see you in Heaven," will come into court today to receive a death sentence for strangling three Inglewood girls.

A jury which found him guilty of murdering Melba and Madeline Everett and Jeanette Stephens made the death penalty mandatory. He may be one of the last to hang in California where a new gas execution bill goes into effect shortly.

Public Defender Frederic Vercoe said he would ask for a new trial. If this is denied, Dyer's case automatically goes to the state supreme court for review under the California sentence-appeal law.

VETERAN AIRMAN SEEKS TO BREAK HUGHES' RECORD

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(UP)—Maj. Alex Seversky, veteran flier and airplane manufacturer, hoped to take off from Floyd Bennett field today for a crack at Howard Hughes' trans-continental non-stop flying record of 9 hours, 26 minutes.

It was possible, he said, that he would be delayed until tomorrow. Seversky will fly his trim commercial version of the Seversky army "fighter," and hoped to reach the Union air terminal at Burbank, Calif., within 10 hours elapsed time.

His plane recently averaged 321 miles an hour on a test flight from Belleville, Ill., to Wright Field at Dayton, O., but it was conceded little chance of breaking Hughes' record.

Hughes flew a Northrop Gamma from west to east, with prevailing tailwinds, while Seversky will face headwinds over the regular Trans-Continental and Western Air east-west route via Kansas City and Albuquerque, N. M.

Seversky said he would enter the Bendix air trophy race next Friday if his plane demonstrated satisfactory speed.

RADCLIFF APPOINTS MERCHANT OFFICER AS SPECIAL DEPUTY

The controversy concerning the police badge of W. W. Crissinger, merchant officer, was ended Monday afternoon. Crissinger wore a shiny new badge Monday night on his beat—that of a Pickaway county deputy sheriff.

The officer presented the police badge that he has worn for several years to Safety Director Charles Caskey, then went to the courthouse where he was appointed a special deputy sheriff by Charles Radcliff, was sworn in by Judge J. W. Adkins and posted $3,000 in bonds, $2,000 as a security bond and $1,000 for permission to carry a weapon.

Crissinger was appointed for a term ending the first Monday in January, 1941, without compensation from the county. He is paid by Circleville merchants, whose stores he watches at night.

Badge Needed
Police Chief William McCrady ordered Crissinger to turn in his police badge last Friday. The badge was issued to the officer during the administration of W. B. Cady. The officer refused to comply with the order. Chief McCrady said the extra badges were needed for officers working at the camp meeting grounds.

"I waited until after Sunday to turn in the badge to show people it was not needed for the camp meeting," Mr. Crissinger said.

UNCLE SAM MAY CLAIM MILLIONS OF MELLON CASH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(UP)—A bureau of internal revenue official told the United Press today that the bureau was considering pressing a new tax claim against the estate of Andrew W. Mellon.

He said the treasury had data showing that Mellon transferred properties worth at least $68,135,584 to his two children, Paul and Ailsa, in 1929 and 1931.

The official explained that this figure was based on "book values" of securities owned by the late financier. The actual value, as determined by the government might be many times this figure, he said.

Under current estate tax regulations, at least $50,000,000 would be asked in federal claims if the suit is pressed. It is believed, the government would not assess any estate tax against the enormous charitable trust left by Mellon. This is said to be valued at between $200,000,000 and $500,000,000.

WINNERS NAMED IN STATE FAIR'S MANY CONTESTS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 31.—(UP)—A crowd surpassing Monday's 50,000 was expected today for the fourth day of the 87th Ohio state fair.

Tokyo's Spokesman Admits Freighters Stopped

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(UP)—British and French authorities in Tientsin have closed the British and French concessions in Tientsin to passage of Japanese troops, uncensored but authoritative dispatches to private sources here revealed today.

The action of the British and French officials culminated a long series of controversies with Japanese officials and military commanders in the Tientsin area. It was considered an indication of the growing friction between the Japanese and other foreign officials and troops in that area.

Reckless Use Cited
Specifically, the British and French authorities objected to what they characterized reckless use of the British and French concessions at Tientsin for the passage of Japanese troops going from debarkation points to the front.

Blockade Stops Neutral Steamers

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31.—(UP)—A Japanese spokesman admitted today that Japanese warships had stopped and boarded several neutral merchantmen in carrying out a blockade of the China coast.

The spokesman did not name the ships. He had just made a statement that the blockade was not interfering with neutral shipping when, in reply to questions, he admitted that neutral ships had been stopped and boarded in order that blockading warships might ascertain their identity.

This new threat of complications involving the United States and other countries came as United States navy and consular authorities warned American shipping away from war endangered Chinese ports, and the American liner President Hoover, bombed yesterday by a Chinese airplane, reported that one seaman had died of wounds.

WHEAT TO GAIN, CORN TO SLIDE, OBSERVERS SAY

Federal Experts Believe U. S.
Crop Will Be Largest
In Years
WORLD SUPPLY SAME
European Production Up Over
1936 Mark

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (UP)—Wheat prices probably will rise somewhat during the next few months, but corn prices may go sharply lower as harvesting begins, government economists predict.

The largest grain crops in several years probably will give the United States an important place in the world wheat markets and curtail imports of corn and other grains, principally from the Argentine, it was said.

Predicted higher wheat prices, it was explained, are based on prospective strengthening of world markets and expectations of a small world production, together with a pickup in European purchases of American wheat.

World wheat supplies, outside of Soviet Russia and China, "now appear likely to be about the same as last year," the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture said.

Upward Revision

World wheat production, excluding Soviet Russia and China, was estimated at 3,777,000,000 bushels, an increase of 240,000,000 bushels over last year. World production estimates have been revised upward 27,000,000 bushels since July 1 and estimates of carry-over stocks boosted 15,000,000 bushels.

Smaller Northern Hemisphere crops of wheat this year in Canada and Asia were more than offset by larger yields in the United States, Europe and Africa, the bureau said.

A United States crop of 890,000,000 bushels, will leave approximately 200,000,000 bushels above domestic requirements for export. Canadian estimates of 165,000,000 bushels will sharply reduce that country's exportable surplus.

European Production

European production was estimated at 1,433,000,000 bushels, an increase of 50,000,000 over last year. The smaller crops in Germany, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Poland are more than offset by increases in France, Spain, Italy and Greece, the bureau said.

On the basis of weather conditions, a production of only about 210,000,000 bushels is indicated for Argentina, which is about 40,000,000 bushels less than last year, and about 14,000,000 bushels for Australia, which is about 10,000,000 bushels less than last year.

In view of the active demand for corn, and with present stocks of old corn at record low levels, only moderate downward adjustments in cash corn prices seem probable until after farmers begin harvesting their new crop," the bureau said.

Prospects of a large corn crop in the United States foreshadow a marked decline in prices for feed grains this fall and winter, the bureau said.

Imports Up

Imports of corn, chiefly from the Argentine, have been at record high levels for the past two months, the bureau said, and have furnished a relatively large percentage of total market supplies.

These imports, the bureau said, are expected to decline rapidly when corn prices become adjusted to a new crop basis. The bureau estimated the production of corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums will total 101,000,000 tons, the largest since 1932.

Oats and barley prices now appear practically adjusted to a new crop basis, the bureau said. Flaxseed prices, due to prospective small United States production and small Argentine stocks, will continue near the present high level during the remainder of the year, the bureau predicted.

W. A. Duvall Finds Sweet Corn With 26 Grain Rows

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Met W. A. (Bill) Duvall "down on the corner" yesterday and he told us a good many things but among the high point ones, was that in handling his sweet corn roasting ears a few days ago, found an extra large one with 26 grain rows.

Said that he had ninety acres of Indian corn that almost gives you the shivers to look at the stuff, and especially, if it is to be put into shock. He feels quite sure that there are a number of acres of it that will yield 100 bushels to the acre. And if anyone doubts his word it is there to be seen.

Said that some of the stalks are so tall, that big as he is, he can't reach up to the ears. And it won't be long now until Bill will be trucking dozens of loads of the finest pie pumpkins you ever looked at to the Mills restaurant, Columbus, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Hedges Leaps to Safety

There are two of those Luck boys, you know, Good and Bad and the last named one, gave Warner Hedges a hard jolt when Warner lost his foot some years ago. But yesterday, the other, Good, rode along with Warner on the tractor, and when the machine took a tumble down into the gravel pit out on the Morrison farm, near town, Warner jumped quickly enough to receive no injury or worse. And Warner, the good wife and the two kiddies are more than just happy to know that both the Luck boys are not named "Bad". The people all around, many of them, came to the rescue of the tractor and it's all out of the hole and ready to go some more.

THROUGHOUT the length and breadth of the land . . . in the cities . . . the towns and the rural sections . . . millions of American boys and girls are trooping back to school. To you parents, it means that your children are laying the foundation for useful lives. To your country, it means the training of her future citizens who will run the affairs of this great nation.

The railroads are not in the school business; they have no vote in school matters, but their taxes pay for the schooling of more than 1,600,000 children each year.

Providing for the education of Uncle Sam's future citizens is a happy privilege of all good citizens, and the Norfolk and Western Railway is proud to be a good citizen. In a recent year, more than $4,000,000 of the total taxes paid by this railroad were used to support the public schools along its lines—taxes that paid for the schooling of more than 45,000 boys and girls.

Norfolk and Western taxes are always paid on the dot. And in many communities they are the chief support of local schools.

The amount of school taxes the railroad pays depends upon the traffic it gets and how economically it operates. When the railroad loses business and when laws are passed that increase the cost of railway operation, it means a cut in your school budget, or an increase in your taxes. Hence, it is sound, common sense to patronize the railroad and see that it gets a square deal.

HEALTHERS WANT SCHOOL CHILDREN TAKEN TO DOCTOR

Health officials of Ohio are urging parents to have their children thoroughly examined by a physician before starting them to school this Fall. It is asked that all pupils, but particularly young ones, be given clean bills of health before they start their classes.

Danger from infantile paralysis that has been reported in several parts of Ohio is cited by public health officers.

Circleville and Pickaway county are free of quarantines at the present time. No recent cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to health authorities.

drive for Shanghai but met stout resistance from Chinese regulars north of the city. They said that they captured the village of Woonung on the Whangpoo after a warship and airplane bombardment, under whose cover they landed reinforcements.

Explaining the slowness of the "final" drive, a Japanese spokesman said that this was the "warming up exercise."

Japanese authorities made one concession to foreign safety today. A spokesman said that the Japanese would give warning before they made any further bombing raids on the Nantao section, adjoining the French concession and the international settlement.

But at the other end of the settlement, two Japanese planes dropped four bombs near the Markham road bridge, which is on the border of the international area.

Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commanding the American fleet, and Consul General Clarence E. Gauss conferred today on plans to evacuate remaining Americans.

News of the death of Seaman Lloyd Haskell, one of those wounded when the American liner President Hoover was bombed yesterday by a Chinese plane, increased the determination of American officials to do their utmost to safeguard lives of United States citizens.

Haskell died as the President Hoover made her way across the China sea today with eight other crew members and several passengers wounded, on her way to Kobe, Japan, and San Francisco.

McKinley to Go On

Because of the emergency ban on American shipping in Chinese war ports, the Dollar liner McKinley, due here tomorrow from Manila to take on refugees will go direct to Japan instead, and continue on to Seattle.

As American authorities conferred on refugee evacuation, and the United States embassy at Nanking prepared to protest the President Hoover bombing to the Chinese government, the Japanese opened their big "final" drive on Shanghai.

They asserted that they took Woonung village, where Chinese regulars had resisted them fiercely for a week, at 11 a. m. today. There were indications, however, that the "final" drive was not so far, the bone crusher it was intended to be.

The Chinese were believed to be withdrawing their main army to stronger lines west of Shanghai. But Chinese official communiques asserted that in the vicinity of Lotien, north of Shanghai and near the center of the Japanese spearhead of attack, the Chinese were holding fast and threatening many Japanese with isolation.

Chinese war planes harassed the Japanese troop lines and Japanese warships in the Whangpoo throughout the night.

Shelling in the city area started early and became heavy. Big Japanese shells began falling in the North railroad station section north of the international settlement.

The American embassy at Nanking, the capital, awaited instructions from Washington on the nature of its protest to the government against yesterday's bombing of the President Hoover.

The Chinese government spontaneously confessed full responsibility for the attack and expressing deep regret.

American authorities found some difficulty in arranging for evacuation of refugees. Admiral Yarnell and Consul General Gauss at first considered using the navy armed cargo boat Gold Star, which arrived from Manila last Friday with 100 marines. But it was decided today that the Gold Star had insufficient accommodations for civilian passengers.

The plan was to have the Gold Star, now tied up at the Standard Oil wharf, take refugees to some point at sea and there transfer them to the liner McKinley which was to have halted here tomorrow.

Two hundred were scheduled to sail in the McKinley. Twenty of these decided today to embark for Kobe, Japan, in the Japanese liner Shanghai Maru.

Consul General Gauss, realizing at once that any Japanese ships were liable to attack by Chinese, warned all Americans who took the ship to remain below decks and away from port holes while in Chinese waters.

There was a growing belief that Admiral Yarnell and Consul General Gauss might decide to evacuate Americans in American warships as far as Japan. Alternative efforts were made to obtain accommodations for them on foreign merchantmen proceeding south to Hong Kong, as this was considered safer than to send them to Japanese ports.

killed by Chinese snipers "somewhere southwest of the Manchukuo border."

But today Japanese sources admitted unofficially that not only he but Gen. Chang were killed by their own men, apparently Manchukuan army in the raid from Manchukuo which brought the conquest of Kalgan and forced Chinese to retreat from the Nan-kow mountain pass to avoid a trap.

Gen. Fujii was one of the distinguished soldiers of Japan. He was credited with building up the Manchukuan army.

The disaffection of General Liu's men was a new development. They were brought to the Peiping area and sent out west of the city to fight the Chinese there.

Several days ago a United Press correspondent talked to one of them who had been brought back wounded. To the correspondent's surprise the wounded man said:

"I don't know who I am fighting for. I was recruited near here and the Japanese gave me my arms."

Today it was understood that much of the army of Gen. Liu had taken its Japanese weapons over to the Chinese side.

Working As Bandits

Some of the deserters were operating as bandits, and servants returning from the French Marist Mission seminary northwest of the city arrived last night to report that 100 of Liu's irregulars attacked the seminary yesterday and sacked and looted it. They robbed thousands of refugees sheltered there and wounded the Rev. Francois De Sales, in the head. They kidnapped two or three French brothers.

Japanese troops set out today to the rescue of the missionaries. With them went Francois Lacoste, third secretary of the French embassy.

It was reported that the irregulars who seized the seminary were prepared to defend it against the Japanese.

CREAM SPILLED

Clara Bow and Cowboy Hubby Open Restaurant

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31—(UP)—Clara Bow, the red-headed woman who turned an impersonal pronoun into an international spinal shiver, brought sex appeal today to the restaurant business.

With appropriate fanfare, elbow-bending, soft music and slicing of turkey for honored guests, she opened the "It" cafe—get it?—in what once was the cocktail lounge of the dignified Plaza hotel.

She ordered all the drab-colored murals torn down, to be replaced with glittering mirrors.

"And over the bar I am going to have a great silver statue of a girl, whose dress is falling from her shoulders and whose hair is solid gold," she said. "It will be a symbol of 'It'."

Wow! The hair of the girl, whose movies once were Hollywood's greatest money-makers, flames as brightly as ever. Her eyes still sparkle, her cheeks still are round, while her figure, well, it's the same copyrighted model which no other film star ever quite achieved.

She wore a brown hat to complement her scarlet curls, a tobacco-colored suit to match, and a smile as bright as the blue-white spot light which glistened on a bowl, carved from solid ice, and filled with caviar.

"And don't get me wrong," she said, removing her lemon-colored gloves and slicing turkey for the well-wishers. "Don't call me a lady Jack Dempsey. I'm not going to be any cocktail lounge hostess."

"We've our own money in this business, Rex and me, and we are going to supervise its operation."

Rex is Rex Bell, her cowboy-actor husband, who calmly nodded his head and dished out oysters—imported all the way from Baltimore—at direction of the camera-men.

"I'll be here frequently, of course," Miss Bow continued. "I'll bring the baby in from the ranch on week-ends and I'll eat here and be glad to see my guests when I am here, but I'm not going to be any ordinary hostess."

The restaurant already has been decorated to her taste, except for those murals, to go, and that statue, to come. It is a handsome room.

The floor is carpeted in wine-colored broadloom, the ceiling is round and gold and decorated with signs of the zodiac, in pale blue. The pianist plays a cream-colored piano with black keys where the white ones should be—and vice versa—and the six bartenders mix "It" cocktails, price 35 cents, behind a shiny ebony masterpiece of the wood finishers' art. There are booths for those who crave privacy, and chairs with red and cream stripes in the open for those who would wrangle their necks when the proprietress walks by.

Latest estimates show that there are 333,500,000 Catholics in the world. This is the second largest religious body in existence.

Fashionists declare that skirts have reached their "ceiling," so to speak. Any stratosphere flights will be blamed on autumn breezes.

NUNLEY HELD FOR JURY

CHILLICOTHE, Aug. 31—Under a last-minute change in plans, Albert Nunley, 18, was arraigned before Mayor W. E. Higley and held to the grand jury under $10,000 bond on charges of auto theft and highway robbery. Nunley confessed being a member of a gang to which is attributed three abductions and several auto thefts and holdups. It had previously been planned to return Nunley to Akron where three Chillicothe youths are held.

another gentleman who prefers GAS HEAT!

Chances are that this young man won't be saying anything about gas heat for some time, but he will show his appreciation in many ways. He's going to keep lots cleaner with gas heat because there won't be any furnace dirt sifting through the house. He'll require less attention and keep healthier. He's going to have fewer colds and other winter ailments because gas heat maintains even temperatures. And his disposition will be better, too.

Every advantage that gas heat offers a child, it offers to each member of the household. Others in the family appreciate, also, the freedom from building fires, shoveling fuel and ashes. And when all expenses incidental to the use of old fashioned fuels are added up on one bill, you'll find that clean, healthful gas heat really costs no more. Phone The Gas Company and request that a representative make a free heating survey of your home. You'll be surprised for how little you can heat with gas — the modern fuel.

A Janitrol fits right into your outmoded furnace to make it an automatic gas-fired unit. The cost is most reasonable and may be divided in convenient payments, if preferred.

BUSINESS CANDOR

MORE and more, the public gets "in on" the things that concern its material welfare. Business men abandon secret or autocratic methods and explain to their customers what they are doing and why they do it. Which is as it should be in a country where we like to think that we have a business democracy as well as a political democracy.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, heir and biggest unit of the original Rockefeller "trust", says hereafter the public will be informed as to the reasons behind all important changes in the price of its products. This is done, explains President W. S. Farish, because "People are interested in and have a right to know what makes the things they buy cost what they do."

Done honestly and intelligently, this is a fine service. It is unusually important because, aside from the effect on this corporation's own patrons, its prices are largely followed by other Standard Oil companies and competitors.

RURAL PROSPERITY

FARM INCOME, as pictured by government economists, is very reassuring. For their principal crops this year, it is estimated, American farmers will get $9,000,000,000.

They got $7,865,000,000 last year and $4,328,000,000 in the most depressed year of 1932. The total in the top year of 1929 was $10,479,000,000. This year may almost equal that great boom and bust year of 1929 in practical return to farmers. For not only prices of things they buy, but mortgaged interest rates, are mostly lower than in 1929.

What is good for the farmers, speaking in general, is good for the population as a whole. City prosperity comes largely from the "grass roots" of rural buying power.

A lot of citizens who have resented the terms "Tory" and "Economic Royalist" swell up with pride when they're called "Lord Macaulays".

Better speak softly to Japan. In her present mood she seems inclined to take on all comers.

New York does its best to get back in the political limelight, but the odds are great.

Never mind. Sooner or later Mussolini will take Asia in hand.

It may be true that "no other nation has really conquered the Chinese", but some of 'em have given her an awful stomach-ache.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Out and around the ville at a reasonable hour, falling in with Sam Joseph who opened his new store in Ironton last week and tells of excellent business. Chatted with Paul Adkins and then with Paul Johnson who have been important factors in forcing recognition of the town as a fine saddle horse center.

Found the Coffee Club deserted and then held sidewalk conference with Ed Ebert about business district decoration for the Yule season. Now is the time to consider concerted action if there is to be any. At noon did attend the Chamber of Commerce session, finding the largest attendance of the Summer season.

Heard business and professional men urge a license fee for bicyclists, not so much for the revenue the city would receive, but because the cyclists are all out of control and need regulation. Who has not seen boys and girls crashing traffic lights day after day, riding two and sometimes three on a bike and appearing after dark without lights on their wheels? Time after time the youngsters have been warned, but always they have turned a deaf ear. Well, one of these days, if they continue their practices, they will be licensed and for infringement of traffic regulations they will be liable to the loss of license just as is the motorist. Personally, I don't wish to kill a child and I even favor laws, if necessary, to force boys and girls to exercise at least a little caution on the streets.

Heard further complaint about that alleged traffic light at the east end of Main street. That thing either should be made efficient or removed. As it is today it stands as a constant invitation to accident. Most of the time the warning lights can not be seen at all by east and west bound traffic and car after car passes under it without the driver knowing that it is operating.

The matter has been called to the attention of officials before and it is high time that they did something about it.

A long afternoon of cyphering and then home, tuning in for the Louis and Farr championship match. Quite a fellow, that British dreadnaught. He fooled everyone by lasting the limit with the Bomber and blasting the general belief in sports circles that no one could stand before his dusky maulers. The scrivener's confidence in Joe's prowess has been entirely missing since the Schmeling affair and I believe that any one of the last half dozen champs, starting with Dempsey, could have flattened Joe without turning a hair. However, I was as much surprised as anyone that Tommy Farr lasted out the evening with the champ.

After the fight a raid on the refrigerator, cleaning up the remnants of Sunday's chicken and washing it down with a great beaker of milk.

STATE DEPARTMENT INVESTIGATING

WASHINGTON — The State Department is keeping it very shush-shush, but it is making an exhaustive investigation of the undercover activities of certain Spanish supporters of rebel General Franco.

Under particular scrutiny is Juan de Cardenas, who resigned as Ambassador to the United States following the outbreak of the fascist revolt. Cardenas heads a group of Spaniards who call themselves the "Junta de Defensa Nacional". They maintain headquarters in a ritzy New York hotel and carry on an extensive correspondence with American fascist elements.

Two of Cardenas' chief lieutenants are Jose de Gregario, former second secretary of the Spanish embassy in Washington, and Manuel Alonso, Spanish tennis star.

The Junta works in close cooperation with the "Casa de Espana", another pro-Franco organization, which also has offices in a fashionable New York hotel and displays the old Spanish monarchist colors as its emblem.

Reason for the State Department's special interest in Cardenas and his Junta is the fact that they proclaim themselves to be the representatives of Franco in the United States. What the State Department wants to know is exactly what this representation amounts to.

The U. S. Government does not recognize Franco and his rebel regime. It does have official relations with the Loyalist Government, whose duly accredited Ambassador is Fernando de los Rios.

The United States Code provides heavy penalties for representing a foreign government in this country without the authorization of the State Department. Title 22 of the Code states, "... anyone who represents himself as an agent of a foreign government without prior notification of the Secretary of State shall be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

FRANCO AMBASSADOR

What makes the inquiry serious is the fact that the State Department is in possession of evidence that might be grounds for action against Cardenas on the charge of violating this law.

The evidence consists of a letter from a Spaniard named Dionisio Trigo describing his activities in Puerto Rico in behalf of Franco. Although not accredited by the State Department, Trigo calls himself Consul of the Franco regime in Puerto Rico. The portion of Trigo's letter that made the State Department sit up and take notice reads as follows:

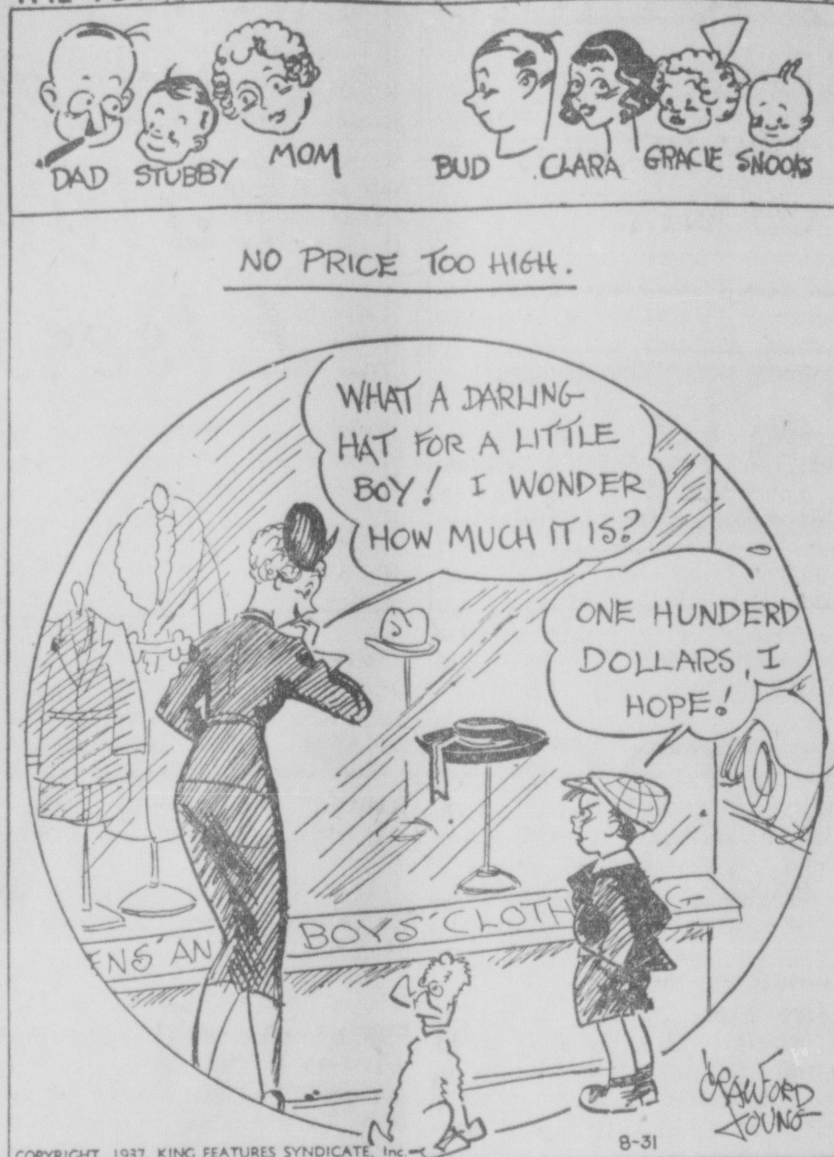

"I am receiving every day registrations and lists of hundreds of Spaniards who wish the establishment of a registry book. To that effect I am waiting for news from our Ambassador Extraordinary in New York, Mr. Cardenas. From this item alone I expect to collect in one or two months from twenty to thirty thousand dollars, which amount I shall send to our government."

The State Department recognizes only one Spanish Ambassador Extraordinary, Senor de los Rios. If Cardenas is making such pretensions it wants to know how come and why.

Added to the gossip column, the candid camera is the latest horror of civilization, and naturally everybody wants one.

Diphtheria Prevention Due to Personal Effort

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
DIPHTHERIA is the one disease where prevention depends upon the personal effort of the individual.

Typhoid fever has disappeared largely because of control of the drinking water supply. When you go out and get a vaccination against typhoid you are simply taking an extra precaution; you are making things a little safer for yourself. The main guardian against typhoid fever is the cleanliness of the water supply.

With smallpox individual vaccination is more important, but still efficient quarantine, quick reporting of sporadic cases and prompt segregation with vaccination of contacts plays a role, certainly an important role in the present rarity of smallpox on this earth.

With diphtheria there is no possibility of central control. This is because many perfectly healthy people go around with diphtheria germs in their mouths and throats. It was with diphtheria that the importance of carriers was first recognized. Graham Smith found that 66 per cent of the members of a family where there had been a case of diphtheria harbored the germs. In families where precautions were taken to isolate the sick room, only 10 per cent were carriers. In infected schools 8.7 per cent of the healthy pupils were found to be carriers.

How Disease Is Spread
If it is asked why this does not turn into a universal epidemic of diphtheria, the answer is that the mechanisms are several. Most important is that a large proportion of the population under any circumstances, over the age of 15 are naturally immune to diphtheria. (By under any circumstances I mean natural condition, when deliberate individual vaccination is not carried out.)

Then it has been shown that the saliva has an inhibitory action on germs, changing a virulent type of diphtheria to a non-virulent type in a short time, so that the carrier, by the action of his own secretions, becomes less dangerous.

Even so, in a state of nature, it is difficult to over-emphasize how a small focus of diphtheria can be widely spread. Chapin has given a graphic description of it—in fact too graphic to repeat in whole. The secretion of the mouth is used for a variety of purposes, and numberless articles are for one reason or another placed in the mouth, and the fingers are with great frequency raised to the mouth or nose. If indigo were secreted in the mouth and nose the fingers would continuously be stained a deep blue. All successful commerce is reciprocal, and in this universal trade the fingers bring foreign secretions to the mouth of the owner, and there exchanging for its own, distribute the latter to everything that the hand touches. Everyone is busily engaged in the distribution of saliva, so that the end of each day finds this secretion on doors, windowsills, furniture, playthings, in the home, straps of trolley cars, rails, counters, desks.

Of course the pathogens die quickly on these objects. And it is well that the saliva has an inhibitory action, but in the presence of a focus of virulent infection the chances of distribution are infinite. Unpleasant as this picture is, it is a fact of life and one that we can take advantage of to punch home the necessity for diphtheria immunization.

To accept this necessity and to act on it requires intelligence and individual initiative. The proof of the efficacy of diphtheria toxoid to protect the individual from diphtheria is available; but it requires intelligence to find it out and understand it. And then enough character to have the vaccination performed on the children for whom you stand sponsor. There are plenty of minds who are so constituted that they will never be convinced. Such people must be gently but firmly taken in hand and made to conform in order to protect the rest of society.

CHAPTER 37

THE PLUMS were fat and glossy. Mari considered them carefully and selected one, wondering vaguely what the caloric content was. She'd already eaten half a luscious melon, a large slice of warm, crusty bread, two boiled eggs and had drunk a glass of milk. Still the plums—

Letitia said, "There is only an hour until the post goes out. Mr. Holk said that if you are to meet the deadline with the article on..."

"Bother the post, Letitia! And bother Mr. Holk. In this enchanted garden, you cannot expect me to concern myself with the wisdom of accentuating organdy by stiffening its edges. Now, if you really want to prove worth your weight in gold to me, you'll have a good sane talk with Rosa. Tell her I simply can't have breakfasts like this put before me! Think of my figure!... Is that the car I ordered? ... the speck on the hill."

Letitia squinted through her duplex glasses—black ones over her spectacles—and said it was.

"Is there an errand I could do for you, Madame? Then you could finish the article and..."

"Letitia, please don't call me 'madame' while we're here. This is our holiday... No, thank you, there isn't anything you can do for me. I'm going out to snare a guest—if I can find him."

Letitia waited.

"I felt a little embarrassed. 'I thought since there is so much room... and all this beauty... well, I thought I'd try to find Mr. Garland. I don't believe he has much money and... well, I think we ought to have a man around, don't you?'"

Letitia said she thought Mr. Venable had been hinting for an invitation.

Mari let it pass, picking up her gloves and making much of peering toward the hill.

She felt very young and a little excited, and annoyed with herself that she had to excuse her impulse to herself. It was nothing more than an act of kindness to a fellow American. He was also, in a way, a kindred soul since he was an artist. And it would be more fun to have someone to enjoy things with.

She wouldn't admit that there was something in his shy, admiring glances that had pleased her, made her want to know more of him. Or would she have known that, affected by so much physical beauty about her, it was only natural that she should have felt her loneliness and need for a person of the opposite sex. And later she would have laughed at the idea that Alec Garland had come into her life—however briefly it was to be—at a psychological moment. She would never have believed that she had paid more attention to the ideal that she built in him than to the man as he was. Alec was to be only a symbol to her. But more of that later.

She sought him out in the large hotels, then in the smaller, and finally found him, sipping coffee at noon, reading the Paris Herald at the table of a sidewalk cafe next to the apothecary shop.

He jumped to his feet when he saw her, his slow, happy smile breaking over his face.

"I've been looking for you," she announced at once.

"And I for you," he answered.

"Yes? Until when?"

"Until I discovered who you are."

"Oh!" Mari wished he hadn't.

"Then this is a case of the mountain coming to Mohamet."

"I'm very pleased," he said simply.

After that it should have been easy for her to say that she had found a spacious villa, a boat and a garden that an artist would enjoy and that she hoped he would accept her hospitality as her house guest for his fortnight.

But she felt suddenly shy. She was unused to pursuing young men.

She said she hoped he would come over and spend the day with her and Letitia.

For a moment, as an expression of uncertainty crossed his face, she thought he was going to refuse. Then he said, "I'd like to... I... will there be others there?"

Mari guessed rightly that he was afraid she would have a gathering of smart people. "No, no, one."

"Good enough. If you'll just give me a chance to get up to my diggings and change..."

"No change," she said. "I hoped you'd go for a sail with me. We'll be very simple."

And so Alec came to live at Villa Mimosa. And Mari found a companion.

In Alec of slow speech and easy contentment, she found an ideal companion. And if Letitia gave up her efforts to do the work Mari had planned to accomplish during her stay, she served as a chaperone and buffer between the world that wanted to intrude on her employer.

Word had come by messenger of friends who were staying at the Grand hotel at Nice and who wanted Mari to join them. Mari would have none of them.

Her days were filled with glorious contentment. The sunshine everywhere was the note of her days. Golden sunshine that warmed their lazy hours in the garden where Alec sketched and Mari read to him; sunshine that browned their bodies in the hours they lay on the smooth sands after their swim; sunshine that cooled before the breeze that swept the little Redwing along her course on the blue waters.

And later there was the moonlight when, after dinner at the taper-lighted table in the great hall, they sat on the terrace and their mingled voices were tuned low to the sounds of the night. There was the croaking of frogs like distant jingle bells, the soft whirr of wings in the perfumed darkness. And sometimes they bade Pancho play for them and sing in a language they did not know.

Letitia left them early and they had a silence that needed no words. If Mari wondered what Alec's thoughts were then, she did not question them. Nor did she question her own.

Mari was in a mood of acceptance, the lazy acceptance that passed from the land into herself. Paris, New York, London, her life was in back of her. She had no wish to hurry her tomorrow. In a land that lived for today, she lived only for today.

There was a growing communion between her and the fair-haired Alec. It was enough for her.

Once, climbing aboard the raft, he had put his arms around her to help her up and, once aboard, he had kept his arm about her.

Another time her foot had slipped on a rocky path and she had found herself in his arms. Her face was lifted to his, she had felt his arm tighten. Then Letitia's voice had been heard directly above them and he released her.

Strolling through the late dusk in the garden, he had held her hand in his as simply as one child does another.

But it wasn't until a week later that he took her in his arms and kissed her. It was, surprisingly, a passionate kiss. It left Mari shaken, questioning.

Hours later, her limbs still trembling from the force that had been let loose by his embrace, she lay awake in the darkness and questioned her heart.

A DEVICE has been invented which enables one to hear insects gnawing away inside wood. We won't buy one. It's hard enough now trying to get to sleep.

JOE LOUIS RETAINS HIS HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE, BUT THAT'S ABOUT ALL

BOMBER LOSES PRESTIGE AFTER FRAY WITH FARR

Welsh Battler Forces Big Detroit Through 15 Rounds

DECISION IS JEERED

British Champion To Stay In U. S. For While

By HENRY McEMORE
NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(UP)—Joe Louis, the brown boy from Alabama, still held the world's heavyweight boxing championship today, but that was about all.

His glamor was gone.

No one spoke of him as the "dynamite" fighter. No one compared him to the stubble-bearded Dempsey of Toledo. No one thought of him as a ruthless executioner, with an ax concealed in each knotted fist.

Because, last night, under the white lights, and in the sticky heat of Yankee stadium, he barely—oh so barely—eked out a 15 round decision over Tommy Farr of Tony Pandey, Wales. Joe's margin was so thin that when his arm was raised at the finish, 33,469 customers greeted him with such thunderous boos that he held his arms aloft scarcely a second lowering them and covering his ears.

The boo was a strange cry to him—he who had always been an idol—and he seemed a little frightened. And, as if to get away from it all, the champion, his face badly swollen, his fists bandaged, caught a plane shortly after midnight and sped home to Detroit at 200 miles an hour.

Perhaps he felt, as did all the spectators and critics, that he had won—and lost. And that Farr had lost—and won.

Farr Standing at 15

Louis was a very ordinary workman last night. In his first defense, and against a challenger held so lightly the odds against him were 10,12, and even 15 to 1 at ring time, he could do nothing. Thousands were bet that Louis would knock out the little known Welshman in the first round, but when the electric scoreboard above the ring flashed "Round 15" there was Farr, standing out in the middle of the ring, waiting for the champion to come out.

And when the champion came out Farr, trained in the circus and carnival booths of the old country, tore into him, using his last bit of strength to paw at Louis with lefts and rights.

At the finish of the fight, when he stretched out on a rubbing table, and held out his hands to have the bandages cut off, Louis complained of injured fists, and said that the hurts, sustained early in the fight, had prevented him from scoring a knockout. His handlers pointed to a swollen knuckle on his right hand—spoke knowingly of a contusion of the metatarsal knuckle. They said Joe got it in the third round, when he bounced a right off Farr's skull, and that had it not happened the champion surely would have finished the challenger in the seventh round. Louis said Farr couldn't hit—that he was not hurt at any time. Yet even as he spoke his staff of repairmen applied ice packs to his right eye and cheek.

Schmeling's Name Heard

Louis said the injury to his right hand—the one he used to put Brad-dock away two months ago—definitely ended any chance of his fighting Max Schmeling this year. When Schmeling, who watched the fight from a ringside seat, was told of this, he shrugged and said:

"I do not care for alibis. Neither does the public. Did you hear the big applause the people gave me when I was introduced? The people, they are tired of seeing me given a run around. Soon Louis will have to fight me, and I will knock him out. Easy, I knock him out. He is finished."

There were no alibis of any sort from the Farr camp. Neither Farr nor any handler would criticize the decision. Tommy paid tribute to Louis as a clean, fair fighter, and a strong puncher. Asked if he thought the decision was unfair, Tommy said:

"I will let the American people decide that. I am satisfied, you thought I was a clown, and couldn't fight. I proved I could. I am very happy."

He should be. From the moment he stepped off the boat until he stepped in the ring, the onetime coal miner with the pock-marked face was ridiculed. He took it all like a game guy, and last night he fought like a dead-game guy. He made such a scrap of it that if he hadn't been a "bleeder" the chances are he would today be the champion of the world.

Skin Milk-White

He bled because most of his life was spent deep in a coal mine—where the sun never had a chance to harden his skin. He came into the ring with milk-white skin. Early in the fight a left hook tore open the wound under his right eye that he suffered in training, and shortly after a ripping right sliced his left cheek.

For 15 rounds Farr fought the perfect fight for a man who lacks a knockout punch. He never kept

McGee Wins to Advance Red Birds to Top Rung

BY UNITED PRESS

A ninth inning rally, which produced two runs, enabled Columbus to defeat Indianapolis 6 to 4, and take undisputed possession of the lead in the American Association. Two-base hits by Rizzo and Seibert contributed to the Red Birds' victory. McGee was the winning pitcher.

Toledo's defensive bulwark went to pieces and Louisville had little trouble in winning by an 8 to 4 score. The Mud Hens committed five errors, and dropped themselves out of the league lead by their fielding miscues. Eisenstat, who pitched for the Colonels, was seldom in trouble and scattered eight Toledo hits.

A clugging fray found Milwaukee running roughshod over St. Paul to the count of 12 to 5, in the only other game played. Washington, Saint outfielder, hit four doubles to tie the league record held jointly by a number of players. The winning Brewers gathered 19 hits.

The Kansas City-Minneapolis game was rained out.

Ex-Champs Scoffing at Title Bout

Dempsey, Johnson, Sharkey, Others Ridicule Joe Louis' Showing

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(UP)—Being nothing more than the bare comment of the present and former boxing champions at the finish of the Joe Louis-Tommy Farr world's heavyweight championship fight:

Jack Dempsey: Fifteen years ago, against that sort of fighters, I would have sent Jack Kearns out to do the fighting, and I would have stayed in the corner.

Jack Johnson: Give me three pork chops and a breath of fresh air and I'll challenge 'em both.

Jack Sharkey: And to think they used to boo me! That's not the same Louis who knocked my head off with a left.

Gene Tunney: Very interesting engagement. Very!

Jimmy Braddock: I'd like another whack at that championship. If he had fought the same fight against me that he did against Farr, Louis never would have taken the title. I may be bad, but not that bad.

Barney Ross: Louis won going away, but he didn't look very good doing it. I never saw a man with his punching power so consistently refuse to use it. He wouldn't hook, he wouldn't throw that right. All he did was jab.

Max Schmeling: I beat Louis every day in the week and twice on Sundays. He didn't try for a knockout because he was scared he might get hurt. That hurt hand? An alibi, maybe, huh?

Mickey Walker: And to think I gave up a dinner of steamed clams and beer to watch this thing.

Benny Leonard: I was born too soon, and too light.

Johnny Dundee: So was I.

Max Baer: I could beat 'em both. I am the greatest fighter in the world. I'll be champion again before the end of next year. Whatta you think of this suit I got on? Paid two hundred smackers for it in London. Class, kid, class. That's Maxie.

Lou Ambers: Farr's a game guy. Ain't it a shame he can't punch. I can't figure out how any man that big can't knock your head off.

Marcel Thill: Mon dieu! Sexto Escobar: The big ones they very slow. Come watch me. Sexto he fly.

TITLE PLAYOFF DELAYED DURING HEATED DEBATE

The playoff for the second half title of the Tri-Country Recreation league will be resumed this evening at 6 o'clock as a result of an argument that concluded Monday night's game between Coca Colas and Container Corporation athletes.

The score was 3-1 in favor of the strawboard outfit in the sixth frame. The softdrinks had two runners on base and two were out. A high fly was hit and, just as Buck Hutchinson was to catch it for the final out, a Coca Cola runner collided with him. The ball fell safely and two runs scored to tie up the fray. Interference was ruled thus ending the inning with the score still 3-1 in favor of the Containers. The Coca Colas complained about this ruling. Arguments followed, and darkness fell ending play.

George Hammel, league prexy, called both teams to start another game at 6 p. m. Tuesday.

The playoff with the Cooper Oils of Commercial Point will start next Monday evening.

still, never offered Louis a shot at a set target. First he would move to the right, then to the left. Now he'd fight in a crouch, now he'd move in from an upright stance. He feinted with everything—feet, hands, head, and body. Louis missed dozens of times, as he floundered in the wake of the shifty Welshman. And it was Farr who made the fight. Time and again he moved quickly in, to belabor Louis with rights to the chin, and jolting punches inside. And often he drove Louis into the ropes, and kept the champion there.

The fight proved that Louis, a devastating force against a slow, awkward foe, can easily be handicapped by one with speed, savvy, and courage. He never had seen anyone who fought like Farr, and he didn't have an answer. Often he stood blinking in the middle of the ring as the challenger darted in and out, to the right and to the left.

He was easy to hit. Tommy hit Joe many snacks on the chin, and had he possessed the power of a Schmeling most surely would have won by a knockout.

Farr to Remain

Farr, who was "made" in defeat, is expected to remain in this country for several months. Promoter Mike Jacobs has several battles planned for him, and one of them undoubtedly is a return shot at the championship.

China has one thing in its favor. A defensive bayonet is just as deadly as an aggressive one.

About This And That In Many Sports

A Football Notice!

Jack Landrum is due in town today to arrange final details for the distribution of football equipment to his 1937 squad. Aspirants to positions on the team are asked to call at the high school between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. Wednesday to receive equipment. Practices will get under way in earnest Thursday with only two weeks remaining until the first game with Groveport here on Sept. 17.

To Replace Henry

Landrum's biggest job will be to develop someone to take Don Henry's place. Others lost from last year's squad are Weldon, Good, Adkins, Lindsey, Hosler, Mills, Denny and Jack Brown. Returning from the 1936 outfit are Captain Earl Garner, Jackson, Rooney, Cooper, Noggle, Arledge, Fickard, Bowsher, Stebelton, Merriman, Nelson, Harden, Osborn, Heffner, Smalley, Walters, Hays, and Orr.

Farr Surprises

Tommy Farr, the Welshman from way down under, took everything Joe Louis could offer Monday evening, but he came out second best in their world's heavyweight title contest. The Detroit Bomber hit Farr too often for the Welshman to have a chance at the title, but Mr. Louis knows that he was in a fight. Just how the Welshman rated the contest in the first place is what gets ye jantoor. If by gaining a victory over Maxie Baer entitles a pug to a title chance then you boys can start lining up on the left. Baer is about the easiest thing on two feet since Mr. Louis plastered him. We wonder if Max Schmeling will now win the title chance he has been deserving for quite a while.

Contributions Needed

Some of Circleville's industrial firms could help the horse show held in connection with the Pumpkin Show late in October by offering to contribute toward prizes.

GIANTS CAPTURE LOOP LEAD WITH WIN OVER REDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(UP)—The New York Giants were in first place of the National league today, challenging the Chicago Cubs to wrest the precious lead away from them.

The Giants were out in front by only .002 percentage points but it was threatening to their pennant defense because it was the first time they were on top since July 14.

They took the lead yesterday with a 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. The last time the Giants were on top for only one day and Carl Hubbell pitched them into the lead then.

Yesterday, Hubbell stepped in and halted a Red rally in the seventh inning when Cliff Melton faltered. It was the Giants' 13th victory in 16 starts and it wiped out what was once a seven game lead for the Cubs.

Melton had held the Reds scoreless until the seventh. He had a four run lead but a single by Riggs and a double by Myers, after a walk and an error put two men on base, gave the Reds three runs. Hubbell went in when Chick Hafey was sent in to pinch hit. Hubbell allowed only one hit. It was the only game in the National league.

In the American, the Detroit Tigers defeated the New York Yankees 5-4 when Gerry Walker doubled home Charley Gehrig with the winning run in the seventh. Hank Greenberg hit his 30th home run and Rudy York his 28th.

In the only other game, the Cleveland Indians beat the Washington Senators 7-6.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

SETTING UP A TRUMP
COMPELLING the declarer to use a high card for ruffing purposes may be the only way to set up a trump trick for yourself, especially if you have some such holding as Q-J alone or J-10 and another. In such a situation, leading a card which both your partner and the declarer will surely ruff may result in your partner using a high enough one to make the declarer come up with a still higher one.

Walter Jacobs of Chicago was one West player who defeated South's contract of 4-Spades. After cashing the two club tricks he realized that both East and South were out of that suit. With his J-10-8 holding in trumps he reckoned that if East could force one of the two top honors out of the South hand, the contract could be set. He therefore led the club 2 to the third trick. On this East played the spade 8, which South was obliged to win with the spade K. This enabled West to make a trump trick, which together with the two club tricks and the diamond A defeated the declarer's contract.

FREIGHTER PLANS
ATTEMPT TO RUN
JAPS' BLOCKADE

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 31 — (UP) A battered old freighter, the Hai Da, was loaded with 5,000 tons of sulphur consigned to China for making gunpowder and was being prepared today for an attempt to run the Japanese blockade of Chinese ports.

Aboard was a Chinese crew of 28 men, commanded by a Norwegian skipper, Capt. F. C. Norvick, who has sailed the China Sea for many years. While guards patrolled the docks about the ship, American workmen installed a powerful radio set and the crew loaded an extra supply of coal for the extra zig-zag route that the ship will have to take. Capt. Norvick was assisted by K. G. Yank, 28-year-old Cantonese, who commented philosophically: "Maybe, maybe not, I get killed. China needs the gunpowder."

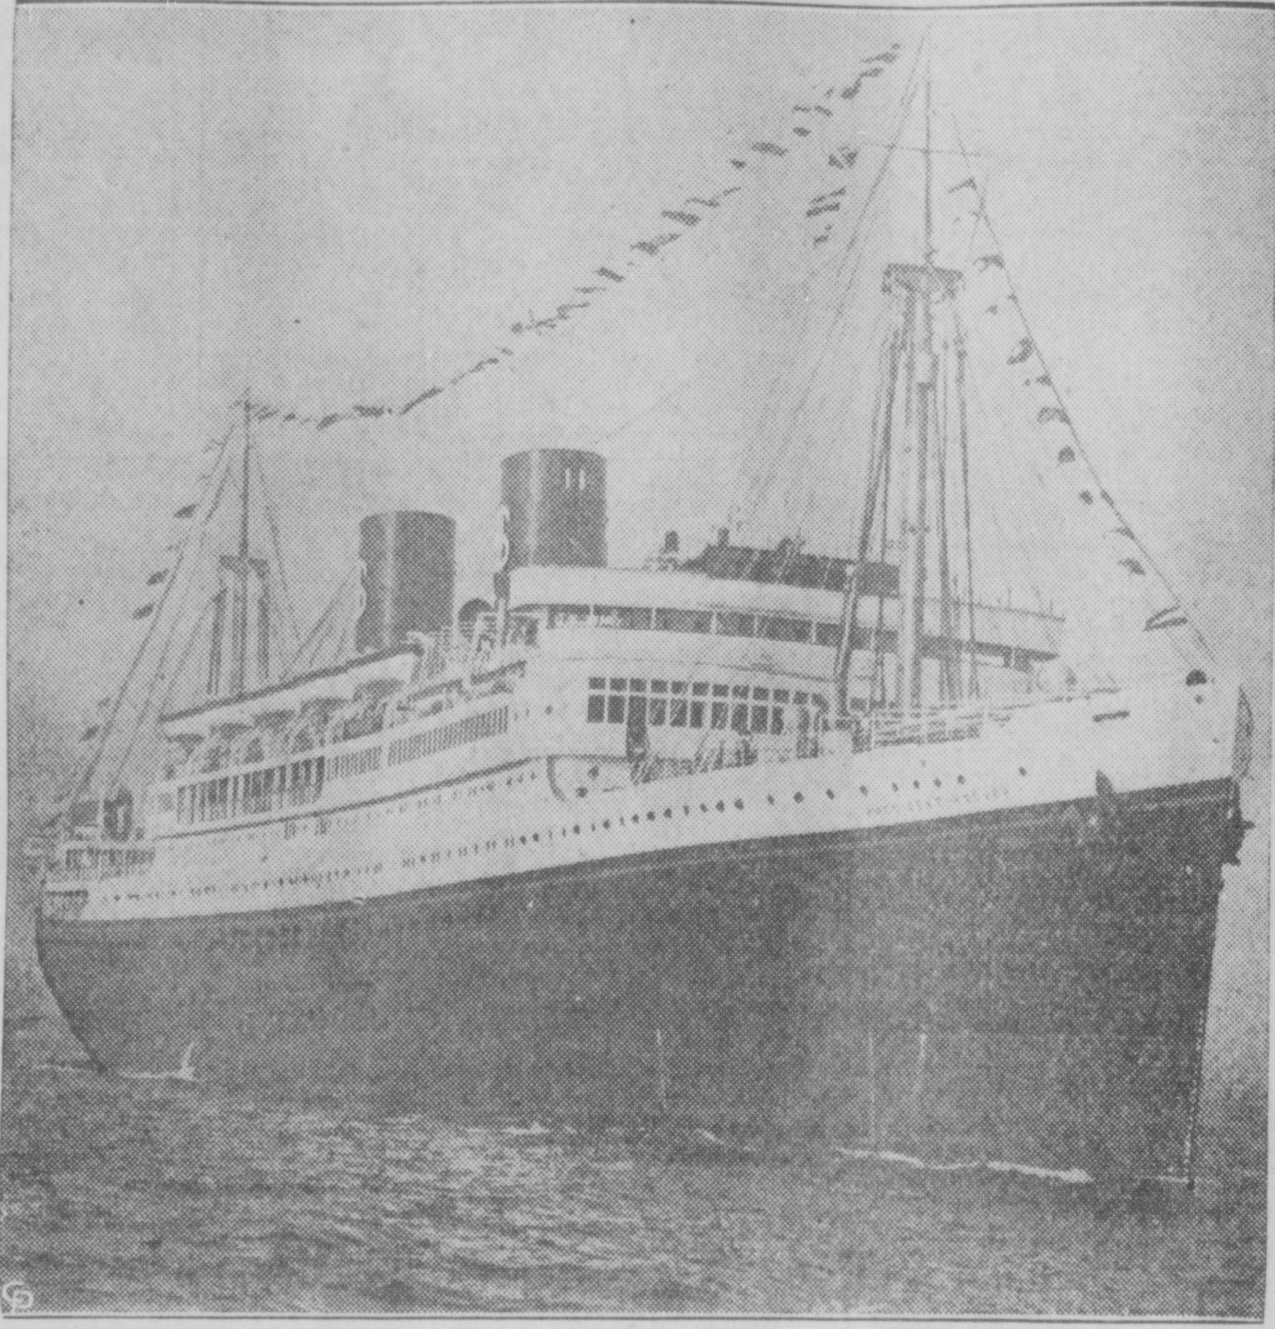

The crew crossed from China on a passenger liner several months ago, boarded the Hai Da in New York and came here via Galveston, Tex.

U. S. Refugee Ship Bombed Nearing Shanghai

THIS is the Dollar Liner President Hoover, which was bombed by Chinese planes as it neared Shanghai to evacuate additional Americans caught in the Sino-Japanese "war". The ship was bombed as it neared the confluence of the Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers. It was en route to Shanghai from Manila for its second load of refugees. It had taken nearly 1,000 to Manila 10 days previously. Seven members of the crew and three passengers were injured when four bombing planes loosed bombs. The Chinese aviators evidently mistook the liner for a Japanese troop ship in the dusk.

Dr. Blackburn To Assume
His Duties Wednesday, Succeeding Kerns

NEW BUILDING PREPARED

Minor Adjustments Asked By Commissioners

The county board of health office was moved from W. Main street into the addition in the courthouse Tuesday. This office is the first being maintained outside the courthouse to be moved into the new addition. Others will be moved into the annex in the near future.

So far no moving dates for the other offices have been set.

County commissioners, Harry W. Lum, architect, and Maxwell Kearns, P. W. A. inspector, visited the annex Monday afternoon. The commissioners ordered several minor adjustments.

Dr. Arthur D. Blackburn and Miss Margaret Hunsicker assume their duties as county health commissioner and nurse, respectively, Wednesday. Dr. Blackburn succeeds Dr. V. D. Kerns who is in private practice.

Dr. Kerns held his last meeting with the board of health Tuesday night for handling routine business. Only three members of the board were present.

The annex, started Feb. 1, will provide space for all county offices now located outside the courthouse. The first floor contains 10 rooms, the second floor six office rooms and two restrooms, and the basement two office rooms, two restrooms and the boiler room.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Exclusive," the screen adaptation of the stage hit "Roaring Girl," comes to the Cliftona Theatre Wednesday and Thursday with Fred MacMurray, Frances Farmer and Charlie Ruggles in the leading roles.

The story, which concerns a newspaper war and discloses the inside workings of a so-called "shake-down sheet" was written by John C. Moffitt, former motion picture critic for the Kansas City "Star."

AT THE GRAND

The most mysterious clue-hunt ever devised in a screen mystery story also finds plenty of opportunity for hilarity, when a scatter-brained night nurse stumbles upon both corpses and clues in "The Great Hospital Mystery," Twentieth Century-Fox film coming Wednesday to the Grand theatre, with Jane Darwell heading the cast. Sig Rumann, Sally Blane, Thomas Beck and Joan Davis are also featured in this Mignon Ebenhardt farcical thriller, which James Tinling directed.

Petitions bearing 78 signatures of persons who removed their names from the light rate referendum move and now want them restored were filed with Mayor W.
J. Graham, Monday at 8:15 p. m.,
by Councilman Ben Gordon.

"That puts us above the quota," Mr. Gordon said Tuesday. "The names were obtained from persons who said they were sorry they had removed their names and wanted them, put back."

Counter-petitions bearing 419 names were filed with Mayor Graham last Saturday by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. The signatures were those of persons who wanted their names removed from the original referendum petitions bearing 670 signers.

The "battle of signatures" is centered around the figure 275 which represents 10 percent of the voters at the election in November, 1935.

City council will hold a regular meeting Wednesday night at which time the mayor will present the various petitions he has received. Attorneys say it is the duty of councilmen to determine the legality of the referendum.

T. A. Renick, attorney for those opposed to the ordinance, says the law makes no provision for the removal of signatures from a referendum of this type.

On the assumption that signatures might be legally removed the foes of the rate contract obtained sufficient names to keep the referendum number above 275.

The Rev. Martin E. Mickey was

Judge Jones, of State Supreme Court, Dead

Oak Hill Native Had Served 22 Years as Member of Ohio
Tribunal; Successor to Be Democrat

COLUMBUS, Aug. 31.—(UP)—Judge Thomas A. Jones, 78, who had served on the Ohio supreme court for 22 years, died at his home here today.

A Republican, Judge Jones first was elected to the supreme court in 1914 and began his term in January, 1915. His present term would have expired Dec. 31, 1938.

He had been in public life almost continuously since 1885 when he was elected mayor of Jackson, Ohio.

The Ohio supreme court had been Republican, four members to three, until Judge Jones' death. Gov. Martin L. Davey, a Democrat, has the power to appoint Judge Jones' successor and to swing the court's balance to the Democratic side.

Widow, Children Survive

Judge Jones is survived by his widow, Grace, two sons, Thomas J. and Eben, and two daughters,
Mrs. Harold Mosier and Mrs. William B. Cockley, all of Cleveland.
Born in a log cabin at Oak Hill,
Ohio, March 4, 1859, of Welsh parentage, Judge Jones was educated in country schools in Jackson county and at Ohio university.
He was first elected to the bench in 1900 when he became a circuit court judge. He served there for 12 years, then was elected to the court of appeals for one term, from Jan. 1, 1913, to Jan.
1, 1915, when he started his long service on the supreme court.

It was understood in political circles that Judge Jones intended to retire from the bench at the expiration on his present term.
Judge Jones was a member of Presbyterian church, several Masonic bodies, and Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

ELEPHANT ACTS FOR FOOD AFTER BEING STRANDED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 31
(UP)—Mena, a 57-year-old female elephant abandoned by a circus and left stranded with a pinto pony and her keeper, Jerry Cooper, 35, today was going through her antics for donations of food.
Cooper, who heralds his charge
as the "largest female pachyderm in captivity," said that Jack Hoxie, promoter of the circus had decided that Mena was too expensive a performer and would have to be left behind. Hoxie, a former cowboy motion picture actor, left Cooper $10 to care for the elephant and pony.

"The $10 bought about one meal for the animals, and now I have no money," Cooper said.

KILLERS OF GIRLS TO HEAR DEATH DECREE ORDERED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31 —
(UP) — Albert Dyer, who last night told his wife "Goodbye, I'll see you in Heaven," will come into court today to receive a death sentence for strangling three Inglewood girls.

A jury which found him guilty of murdering Melba and Madeline Everett and Jeanette Stephens made the death penalty mandatory. He may be one of the last to hang in California where a new gas execution bill goes into effect shortly.

Public Defender Frederic Vercoe
said he would ask for a new trial.
If this is denied, Dyer's case au-tomatically goes to the state supreme court for review under the California sentence-appeal law.

PEIPING, Aug. 31.—(UP)—A

men in a revolt, Japanese sources said today.

In addition, many men of the

VETERAN AIRMAN SEEKS TO BREAK HUGHES' RECORD

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(UP)—
Maj. Alex Seversky, veteran flier and airplane manufacturer, hoped to take off from Floyd Bennett field today for a crack at Howard Hughes' trans-continental non-stop flying record of 9 hours, 26 minutes.

It was possible, he said, that he would be delayed until tomorrow.
Seversky will fly his trim commercial version of the Seversky army "fighter," and hoped to reach the Union air terminal at Burbank, Calif., within 10 hours elapsed time.

His plane recently averaged 321 miles an hour on a test flight from Belleville, Ill., to Wright Field at Dayton, O., but it was conceded little chance of breaking Hughes' record.

Hughes flew a Northrop Gamma from west to east with prevailing tailwinds, while Seversky will face headwinds over the regular Transcontinental and Western Air east-west route via Kansas City and Albuquerque, N. M.

Seversky said he would enter the Bendix air trophy race next Friday if his plane demonstrated satisfactory speed.

RADCLIFF APPOINTS MERCHANT OFFICER AS SPECIAL DEPUTY

The controversy concerning the police badge of W. W. Crissinger, merchant officer, was ended Monday afternoon. Crissinger wore a shiny new badge Monday night on his beat—that of a Pickaway county deputy sheriff.

The officer presented the police badge that he has worn for several years to Safety Director Charles Caskey, then went to the courthouse where he was appointed.

A special deputy sheriff by Charles Radcliff, was sworn in by Judge J. W. Adkins and posted $3,000 in bonds, $2,000 as a security bond and $1,000 for permission to carry a weapon.

Crissinger was appointed for a term ending the first Monday in January, 1941, without compensation from the county. He is paid by Circleville merchants, whose stores he watches at night.

Police Chief William McCrady ordered Crissinger to turn in his police badge last Friday. The badge was issued to the officer

during the administration of W.
B. Cady. The officer refused to comply with the order. Chief Mc-Crady said the extra badges were needed for officers working at the camp meeting grounds.

"I waited until after Sunday to turn in the badge to show people it was not needed for the camp meeting," Mr. Crissinger said.

The merchant officer said he had received splendid co-operation from the sheriff's department in the past and was highly pleased with his appointment.

He was approved by council as a merchant officer after a petition bearing 54 names was submitted.

UNCLE SAM MAY CLAIM MILLIONS OF MELLON CASH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(UP)—
A bureau of internal revenue official told the United Press today that the bureau was considering pressing a new tax claim against the estate of Andrew W.
Mellon.

He said the treasury had data showing that Mellon transferred properties worth at least $68,135,- 584 to his two children, Paul and Ailsa, in 1929 and 1931.

The official explained that this figure was based on "book values" of securities owned by the late financier. The actual value, as determined by the government might be many times this figure,
he said.

Under current estate tax regulations, at least $50,000,000 would be asked in federal claims if the suit is pressed.

It is believed, the government would not assess any estate tax against the enormous charitable trust left by Mellon. This is said to be valued at between $200,000,- 000 and $500,000,000.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 31.—(UP)—
A crowd surpassing Monday's pion 4-year-old stud. Wentz had the best stallion foal entered and also won the group of three stall-

The $500 stake event for fivegaiters in the opening night horse show was won by Delaine Hours,
8-year-old gelding of the Delaine

Tokyo's Spokesman Admits

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(UP)—
British and French authorities in Tientsin have closed the British and French concessions in Tientsin to passage of Japanese troops, uncensored but authoritative dispatches to private sources here revealed today.

The action of the British and French officials culminated a long series of controversies with Japanese officials and military commanders in the Tientsin area.
It was considered an indication of the growing friction between the Japanese and other foreign officials and troops in that area.

Reckless Use Cited
Specifically, the British and French authorities objected to what they characterized reckless

Blockade Stops Neutral Steamers

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31.—(UP)—
A Japanese spokesman admitted today that Japanese warships had stopped and boarded several neutral merchantmen in carrying out a blockade of the China coast.

The spokesman did not name the ships. He had just made a statement that the blockade was not interfering with neutral shipping when, in reply to questions, he admitted that neutral ships had been stopped and boarded in order that blockading warships might ascertain their identity.

This new threat of complications involving the United States and other countries came as United States navy and consular authorities warned American shipping away from war endangered Chinese ports, and the American liner

WHEAT TO GAIN, CORN TO SLIDE, OBSERVERS SAY

Federal Experts Believe U. S.
Crop Will Be Largest
In Years

WORLD SUPPLY SAME

European Production Up Over
1936 Mark

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (UP)—Wheat prices probably will rise somewhat during the next few months, but corn prices may go sharply lower as harvesting begins, government economists predict.

The largest grain crops in several years probably will give the United States an important place in the world wheat markets and curtail imports of corn and other grains, principally from the Argentine, it was said.

Predicted higher wheat prices, it was explained, are based on prospective strengthening of world markets and expectations of a small world production, together with a pickup in European purchases of American wheat.

World wheat supplies, outside of Soviet Russia and China, "now appear likely to be about the same as last year," the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture said.

Upward Revision

World wheat production, excluding Soviet Russia and China, was estimated at 3,777,000,000 bushels, an increase of 240,000,000 bushels over last year. World production estimates have been revised upward 27,000,000 bushels since July 1 and estimates of carry-over stocks boosted 15,000,000 bushels.

Smaller Northern Hemisphere crops of wheat this year in Canada and Asia were more than offset by larger yields in the United States, Europe and Africa, the bureau said.

A United States crop of 890,000,000 bushels, will leave approximately 200,000,000 bushels above domestic requirements for export. Canadian estimates of 165,000,000 bushels will sharply reduce that country's exportable surplus.

European production was estimated at 1,433,000,000 bushels, an increase of 50,000,000 over last year. The smaller crops in Germany, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Poland are more than offset by increases in France, Spain, Italy and Greece, the bureau said.

On the basis of weather conditions, a production of only about 210,000,000 bushels is indicated for Argentina, which is about 40,000,000 bushels less than last year, and about 14,000,000 bushels for Australia, which is about 10,000,000 bushels less than last year.

In view of the active demand for corn, and with present stocks of old corn at record low levels, only moderate downward adjustments in cash corn prices seem probable until after farmers begin harvesting their new crop," the bureau said.

Prospects of a large corn crop in the United States foreshadow a marked decline in prices for feed grains this fall and winter, the bureau said.

Imports Up

Imports of corn, chiefly from the Argentine, have been at record high levels for the past two months, the bureau said and have furnished a relatively large percentage of total market supplies.

These imports, the bureau said, are expected to decline rapidly when corn prices become adjusted to a new crop basis. The bureau estimated the production of corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums will total 101,000,000 tons, the largest since 1932.

Oats and barley prices now appear practically adjusted to a new crop basis, the bureau said. Flaxseed prices, due to prospective small United States production and small Argentine stocks, will continue near the present high level during the remainder of the year, the bureau predicted.

W. A. Duvall Finds Sweet Corn With 26 Grain Rows

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Met W. A. (Bill) Duvall "down on the corner" yesterday and he told us a good many things but among the high point ones, was that in handling his sweet corn roasting ears a few days ago, found an extra large one with 26 grain rows.

Said that he had ninety acres of Indian corn that almost gives you the shivers to look at the stuff, and especially, if it is to be put into shock. He feels quite sure that there are a number of acres of it that will yield 100 bushels to the acre. And if anyone doubts his word it is there to be seen.

Said that some of the stalks are so tall, that big as he is, he can't reach up to the ears. And it won't be long now until Bill will be trucking dozens of loads of the finest pie pumpkins you ever looked at to the Mills restaurant, Columbus, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

But yesterday, the other, Good, rode along with Warner on the tractor, and when the machine took a tumble down into the gravel pit out on the Morrison farm, near town, Warner jumped quickly enough to receive no injury or worse. And Warner, the good wife and the two kiddies are more than just happy to know that both the Luck boys are not named "Bad". The people all around, many of them, came to the rescue of the tractor and it's all out of the hole and ready to go some more.

BACK TO SCHOOL

THROUGHOUT the length and breadth of the land... in the cities... the towns and the rural sections... millions of American boys and girls are trooping back to school. To you parents, it means that your children are laying the foundation for useful lives. To your country, it means the training of her future citizens who will run the affairs of this great nation.

The railroads are not in the school business; they have no vote in school matters, but their taxes pay for the schooling of more than 1,600,000 children each year.

Providing for the education of Uncle Sam's future citizens is a happy privilege of all good citizens, and the Norfolk and Western Railway is proud to be a good citizen. In a recent year, more than $4,000,000 of the total taxes paid by this railroad were used to support the public schools along its lines—taxes that paid for the schooling of more than 45,000 boys and girls.

Norfolk and Western taxes are always paid on the dot. And in many communities they are the chief support of local schools.

The amount of school taxes the railroad pays depends upon the traffic it gets and how economically it operates. When the railroad loses business and when laws are passed that increase the cost of railway operation, it means a cut in your school budget, or an increase in your taxes. Hence, it is sound, common sense to patronize the railroad and see that it gets a square deal.

drive for Shanghai but met stout resistance from Chinese regulars north of the city. They said that they captured the village of Woonung on the Whangpoo after a warship and airplane bombardment, under whose cover they landed reinforcements.

Explaining the slowness of the "final" drive, a Japanese spokesman said that this was the "warming up exercise."

Japanese authorities made one concession to foreign safety today. A spokesman said that the Japanese would give warning before they made any further bombing raids on the Nantao section, adjoining the French concession and the international settlement.

But at the other end of the settlement, two Japanese planes dropped four bombs near the Markham road bridge, which is on the border of the international area.

Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commanding the American fleet, and Consul General Clarence E. Gauss conferred today on plans to evacuate remaining Americans.

News of the death of Seaman Lloyd Haskell, one of those wounded when the American liner President Hoover was bombed yesterday by a Chinese plane, increased the determination of American officials to do their utmost to safeguard lives of United States citizens.

Haskell died as the President Hoover made her way across the China sea today with eight other crew members and several passengers wounded, on her way to Kobe, Japan, and San Francisco.

McKinley to Go On

Because of the emergency ban on American shipping in Chinese war ports, the Dollar liner McKinley, due here tomorrow from Manila to take on refugees will go direct to Japan instead, and continue on to Seattle.

As American authorities conferred on refugee evacuations, and the United States embassy at Nanking prepared to protect the President Hoover bombing to the Chinese government, the Japanese opened their big "final" drive on Shanghai.

They asserted that they took Woonung village, where Chinese regulars had resisted them fiercely for a week, at 11 a. m. today. There were indications, however, that the "final" drive was not so far, the bone crusher it was intended to be.

The Chinese were believed to be withdrawing their main army to stronger lines west of Shanghai. But Chinese official communiques asserted that in the vicinity of Lo-tien, north of Shanghai and near the center of the Japanese spearhead of attack, the Chinese were holding fast and threatening many Japanese with isolation.

Chinese war planes harassed the Japanese troop lines and Japanese warships in the Whangpoo throughout the night.

Shelling in the city area started early and became heavy. Big Japanese shells began falling in the North railroad station section north of the international settlement.

The American embassy at Nanking, the capital, awaited instructions from Washington on the nature of its protest to the government against yesterday's bombing of the President Hoover.

The Chinese government spontaneously confessed full responsibility for the attack and expressing deep regret.

American authorities found some difficulty in arranging for evacuation of refugees. Admiral Yarnell and Consul General Gauss at first considered using the navy armed cargo boat Gold Star, which arrived from Manila last Friday with 100 marines. But it was decided today that the Gold Star had insufficient accommodations for civilian passengers.

The plan was to have the Gold Star, now tied up at the Standard Oil wharf, take refugees to some point at sea and there transfer them to the liner McKinley which was to have halted here tomorrow.

Two hundred were scheduled to sail in the McKinley. Twenty of these decided today to embark for Kobe, Japan, in the Japanese liner Shanghai Maru.

Consul General Gauss, realizing at once that any Japanese ships were liable to attack by Chinese, warned all Americans who took the ship to remain below decks and away from port holes while in Chinese waters.

There was a growing belief that Admiral Yarnell and Consul General Gauss might decide to evacuate Americans in American warships as far as Japan. Alternative efforts were made to obtain accommodations for them on foreign merchantmen proceeding south to Hong Kong, as this was considered safer than to send them to Japanese ports.

killed by Chinese snipers "somewhere southwest of the Manchukuo border."

But today Japanese sources admitted unofficially that not only he but Gen. Chang were killed by their own men, apparently Manchukuan army in the raid from Manchukuo which brought the conquest of Kalgan and forced Chinese to retreat from the Nan-kow mountain pass to avoid a trap.

Gen. Fujii was one of the distinguished soldiers of Japan. He was credited with building up the Manchukuan army.

The disaffection of General Liu's men was a new development. They were brought to the Peiping area and sent out west of the city to fight the Chinese there. Several days ago a United Press correspondent talked to one of them who had been brought back wounded. To the correspondent's surprise the wounded man said:

"I don't know who I am fighting for. I was recruited near here and the Japanese gave me my arms."

Today it was understood that much of the army of Gen. Liu had taken its Japanese weapons over to the Chinese side.

Working As Bandits

Some of the deserters were operating as bandits, and servants returning from the French Marist Mission seminary northwest of the city arrived last night to report that 100 of Liu's irregulars attacked the seminary yesterday and sacked and looted it. They robbed thousands of refugees sheltered there and wounded the rector, the Rev. Francois De Sales, in the head. They kidnapped two or three French brothers.

Japanese troops set out today to the rescue of the missionaries. With them went Francois Lacoste, third secretary of the French embassy.

It was reported that the irregulars who seized the seminary were prepared to defend it against the Japanese.

Latest estimates show that there are 333,500,000 Catholics in the world. This is the second largest religious body in existence.

Clara Bow and Cowboy Hubby Open Restaurant

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31 — (UP) — Clara Bow, the red-headed woman who turned an impersonal pronoun into an international spinal shiver, brought sex appeal today to the restaurant business.

With appropriate fanfare, elbow-bending, soft music and slicing of turkey for honored guests, she opened the "It" cafe—get it?—in what once was the cocktail lounge of the dignified Plaza hotel.

She ordered all the drab-colored murals torn down, to be replaced with glittering mirrors.

"And over the bar I am going to have a great silver statue of a girl, whose dress is falling from her shoulders and whose hair is solid gold," she said. "It will be a symbol of 'It'."

Wowie!

The hair of the girl, whose movies once were Hollywood's greatest money-makers, flames as brightly as ever. Her eyes still sparkle, her cheeks still are round, while her figure, well, it's the same copyrighted model which no other film star ever quite achieved.

She wore a brown hat to complement her scarlet curls, a tobacco-colored suit to match, and a smile as bright as the blue-white spot light which glistened on a bowl, carved from solid ice, and filled with caviar.

"And don't get me wrong," she said, removing her lemon-colored gloves and slicing turkey for the well-wishers. "Don't call me a lady Jack Dempsey. I'm not going to be any cocktail lounge hostess."

"We've our own money in this business, Rex and me, and we are going to supervise its operation."

Rex is Rex Bell, her cowboy-actor husband, who calmly nodded his head and dished out oysters—imported all the way from Baltimore—at direction of the cameramen.

"I'll be here frequently, of course," Miss Bow continued. "I'll bring the baby in from the ranch on week-ends and I'll eat here and be glad to see my guests when I am here, but I'm not going to be any ordinary hostess."

The restaurant already has been decorated to her taste, except for those murals, to go, and that statue, to come. It is a handsome room.

The floor is carpeted in wine-colored broadloom, the ceiling is round and gold and decorated with signs of the zodiac, in pale blue. The pianist plays a cream-colored piano with black keys where the white ones should be—and vice versa—and the six bartenders mix "It" cocktails, price 35 cents, behind a shiny ebony masterpiece of the wood finishers' art. There are booths for those who crave privacy, and chairs with red and cream stripes in the open for those who would crame their necks when the proprietress walks by.

Fashionists declare that skirts have reached their "ceiling," so to speak. Any stratosphere flights will be blamed on autumn breezes.

"Miss Maryland"

THIS 19-year-old dancer, May Vivian Miller, represents her state, Maryland, in the Atlantic City, N. J., "Miss America" beauty contest and pageant.

NUNLEY HELD FOR JURY

CHILLICOTHE, Aug. 31 — Under a last-minute change in plans, Albert Nunley, 18, was arraigned before Mayor W. E. Higley and held to the grand jury under $10,000 bond on charges of auto theft and highway robbery. Nunley confessed being a member of a gang to which is attributed three abductions and several auto thefts and holdups. It had previously been planned to return Nunley to Akron where three Chillicothe youths are held.

another gentleman who prefers GAS HEAT!

Chances are that this young man won't be saying anything about gas heat for some time, but he will show his appreciation in many ways. He's going to keep lots cleaner with gas heat because there won't be any furnace dirt sifting through the house. He'll require less attention and keep healthier. He's going to have fewer colds and other winter ailments because gas heat maintains even temperatures. And his disposition will be better, too.

Every advantage that gas heat offers a child, it offers to each member of the household. Others in the family appreciate, also, the freedom from building fires, shoveling fuel and ashes. And when all expenses incidental to the use of old fashioned fuels are added up on one bill, you'll find that clean, healthful gas heat really costs no more. Phone The Gas Company and request that a representative make a free heating survey of your home. You'll be surprised for how little you can heat with gas — the modern fuel.

A Janitrol fits right into your out-moded furnace to make it an automatic gas-fired unit. The cost is most reasonable and may be divided in convenient payments, if preferred.

BUSINESS CANDOR

MORE and more, the public gets "in on" the things that concern its material welfare. Business men abandon secret or autocratic methods and explain to their customers what they are doing and why they do it. Which is as it should be in a country where we like to think that we have a business democracy as well as a political democracy.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, heir and biggest unit of the original Rockefeller "trust", says hereafter the public will be informed as to the reasons behind all important changes in the price of its products. This is done, explains President W. S. Farish, because "People are interested in and have a right to know what makes the things they buy cost what they do."

Done honestly and intelligently, this is a fine service. It is unusually important because, aside from the effect on this corporation's own patrons, its prices are largely followed by other Standard Oil companies and competitors.

RURAL PROSPERITY

FARM INCOME, as pictured by government economists, is very reassuring. For their principal crops this year, it is estimated, American farmers will get $9,000,000,000.

They got $7,865,000,000 last year and $4,328,000,000 in the most depressed year of 1932. The total in the top year of 1929 was $10,479,000,000. This year may almost equal that great boom and bust year of 1929 in practical return to farmers. For not only prices of things they buy, but mortgaged interest rates, are mostly lower than in 1929.

What is good for the farmers, speaking in general, is good for the population as a whole. City prosperity comes largely from the "grass roots" of rural buying power.

A lot of citizens who have resented the terms "Tory" and "Economic Royalist" swell up with pride when they're called "Lord Macaulays".

Better speak softly to Japan. In her present mood she seems inclined to take on all comers.

New York does its best to get back in the political limelight, but the odds are great.

Never mind. Sooner or later Mussolini will take Asia in hand.

It may be true that "no other nation has really conquered the Chinese", but some of 'em have given her an awful stomach-ache.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

STATE DEPARTMENT INVESTIGATING
WASHINGTON—The State Department is keeping it very shush-shush, but it is making an exhaustive investigation of the undercover activities of certain Spanish supporters of rebel General Franco.

Under particular scrutiny is Juan de Cardenas, who resigned as Ambassador to the United States following the outbreak of the fascist revolt. Cardenas heads a group of Spaniards who call themselves the "Junta de Defensa Nacional". They maintain headquarters in a ritzy New York hotel and carry on an extensive correspondence with American fascist elements.

Two of Cardenas' chief lieutenants are Jose de Gregario, former second secretary of the Spanish embassy in Washington, and Manuel Alonso, Spanish tennis star.

The Junta works in close cooperation with the "Casa de Espana", another pro-Franco organization, which also has offices in a fashionable New York hotel and displays the old Spanish monarchist colors as its emblem.

Reason for the State Department's special interest in Cardenas and his Junta is the fact that they proclaim themselves to be the representatives of Franco in the United States. What the State Department wants to know is exactly what this representation amounts to.

The U. S. Government does not recognize Franco and his rebel regime. It does have official relations with the Loyalist Government, whose duly accredited Ambassador is Fernando de los Rios.

The United States Code provides heavy penalties for representing a foreign government in this country without the authorization of the State Department. Title 22 of the Code states, "... anyone who represents himself as an agent of a foreign government without prior notification of the Secretary of State shall be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

FRANCO AMBASSADOR

What makes the inquiry serious is the fact that the State Department is in possession of evidence that might be grounds for action against Cardenas on the charge of violating this law.

The evidence consists of a letter from a Spaniard named Dionisio Trigo describing his activities in Puerto Rico in behalf of Franco. Although not accredited by the State Department, Trigo calls himself Consul of the Franco regime in Puerto Rico. The portion of Trigo's letter that made the State Department sit up and take notice reads as follows:

"I am receiving every day registrations and lists of hundreds of Spaniards who wish the establishment of a registry book. To that effect I am waiting for news from our Ambassador Extraordinary in New York, Mr. Cardenas. From this item alone I expect to collect in one or two months from twenty to thirty thousand dollars, which amount I shall send to our government."

The State Department recognizes only one Spanish Ambassador Extraordinary, Senor de los Rios. If Cardenas is making such pretensions it wants to know how come and why.

Added to the gossip column, the candid camera is the latest horror of civilization, and naturally everybody wants one.

Diphtheria Prevention Due to Personal Effort

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
DIPHTHERIA is the one disease where prevention depends upon the personal effort of the individual. Typhoid fever has disappeared largely because of control of the drinking water supply. When you go out and get a vaccination against typhoid you are simply taking an extra precaution; you are making things a little safer for yourself. The main guard against typhoid fever is the cleanliness of the water supply. With smallpox individual vaccination is more important, but still efficient quarantine, quick reporting of sporadic cases and prompt segregation with vaccination of contacts plays a role, certainly an important role in the present rarity of smallpox on this earth. With diphtheria there is no possibility of central control. This is because many perfectly healthy people go around with diphtheria germs in their mouths and throats. It was with diphtheria that the importance of carriers was first recognized. Graham Smith found that 66 per cent of the members of a family where there had been a case of diphtheria harbored the germs. In families where precautions were taken to isolate the sick room, only 10 per cent were carriers. In infected schools 8.7 per cent of the healthy pupils were found to be carriers.

How Disease Is Spread
If it is asked why this does not turn into a universal epidemic of diphtheria, the answer is that the mechanisms are several. Most important is that a large proportion of the population under any circumstances, over the age of 15 are naturally immune to diphtheria. (By under any circumstances I mean natural condition, when deliberate individual vaccination is not carried out). Then it has been shown that the

Of course the pathogens die quickly on these objects. And it is well that the saliva has an inhibitory action, but in the presence of a focus of virulent infection the chances of distribution are infinite. Unpleasant as this picture is, it is a fact of life and one that we must take advantage of to punch home the necessity for diphtheria immunization. To accept this necessity and to act on it requires intelligence and individual initiative. The proof of the efficacy of diphtheria toxoid to protect the individual from diphtheria is available; but it requires intelligence to find it out and understand it. And then enough character to have the vaccination performed on the children for whom you stand sponsor. There are plenty of minds who are so constituted that they will never be convinced. Such people must be gently but firmly taken in hand and made to conform in order to protect the rest of society.

RUSTLE OF SILKS

COPYRIGHT, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 37
THE PLUMS were fat and glossy. Mari considered them carefully and selected one, wondering vaguely what the caloric content was. She'd already eaten half a luscious melon, a large slice of warm, crusty bread, two boiled eggs and had drunk a glass of milk. Still the plums—
Letitia said, "There is only an hour until the post goes out. Mr. Holk said that if you are to meet the deadline with the article on..."
"Bother the post, Letitia! And bother Mr. Holk. In this enchanted garden, you cannot expect me to concern myself with the wisdom of accepting organdy by stiffening its edges. Now, if you really want to prove worth your weight in gold to me, you'll have a good time with Rosa. Tell her I simply can't have breakfasts like this put before me! Think of my figure!... Is that the car I ordered?... the speck on the hill!"
Letitia squinted through her duplex glasses—black ones over her spectacles—and said it was.
"Is there an errand I could do for you, Madame? Then you could finish the article and..."
Letitia waited.
Mari felt a little embarrassed. "I thought since there is so much room... and all this beauty... well, I thought I'd try to find Mr. Cardenas. I don't believe he has much money and... well, I think we ought to have a man around, don't you?"
Letitia said she thought Mr. Venable had been hinting for an invitation.
Mari let it pass, picking up her gloves and making much of peering toward the hill.
She felt very young and a little excited and annoyed with herself that she had to excuse her impulse to herself. It was nothing more than an act of kindness to a fellow American. He was also, in a way, a kindred soul since he was an artist. And it would be more fun to have someone to enjoy things with.
She wouldn't admit that there was something in his shy, admiring glances that had pleased her, made her want to know more of him. Or would she have known that, affected by so much physical beauty about her, it was only natural that she should have felt her loneliness and need for a person of the opposite sex.
And later she would have laughed at the idea that Alec Gardland had come into her life—however briefly it was to be—at a psychological moment. She would never have believed that she had paid more attention to the ideal that she built in him than to the man as he was. Alec was to be only a symbol to her. But more of that later.
She sought him out in the large hotels, then in the smaller, and finally found him, sipping coffee at noon, reading the Paris Herald at the table of a sidewalk cafe next to the apothecary shop.
He jumped to his feet when he saw her, his slow, happy smile breaking over his face.
"I've been looking for you," she announced at once.
"And I for you," he answered. "Until—" "Yes? Until when?" "Until I discovered who you are."
"Oh! Mari wished he hadn't. Then this is a case of the mountain coming to Mohamet."
"I'm very pleased," he said simply.
After that it should have been easy for her to say that she had found a spacious villa, a boat and a garden that an artist would enjoy and that she hoped he would accept her hospitality as her house guest for his fortnight. But she felt suddenly shy. She was unused to pursuing young men.
She said she hoped he would come over and spend the day with her and Letitia.
For a moment, as an expression of uncertainty crossed his face, she thought he was going to refuse. Then he said, "I'd like to... I... will there be others there?"
Mari guessed rightly that he was afraid she would have a gathering of smart people. "No, no one."
"Good enough. If you'll just give me a chance to get up to my diggings and change..."
"No change," she said. "I hoped you'd go for a sail with me. We'll be very simple."
And so Alec came to live at Villa Mimosa. And Mari found a companion.
In Alec of slow speech and easy contentment, she found an ideal companion. And if Letitia gave up her efforts to do the work Mari had planned to accomplish during her stay, she served as a chaperone and buffer between the world that wanted to intrude on her employer.
Word had come by messenger

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Out and around the ville at a reasonable hour, falling in with Sam Joseph who opened his new store in Ironton last week and tails of excellent business. Chatted with Paul Adkins and then with Paul Johnson who have been important factors in forcing recognition of the town as a fine saddle horse center.

Found the Coffee Club deserted and then held sidewalk conference with Ed Ebert about business district decoration for the Yule season. Now is the time to consider concerted action if there is to be any. At noon did attend the Chamber of Commerce session, finding the largest attendance of the Summer season.

Heard business and professional men urge a license fee for bicyclists, not so much for the revenue the city would receive, but because the cyclists are all out of control and need regulation. Who has not seen boys and girls crashing traffic lights day after day, riding two and sometimes three on a bike and appearing after dark without lights on their wheels? Time after time the youngsters have been warned, but always they have turned a deaf ear. Well, one of these days, if they continue their practices, they will be licensed and for infringement of traffic regulations they will be liable to the loss of license just as is the motorist. Personally, I don't wish to kill a child and I even favor laws, if necessary, to force boys and girls to exercise at least a little caution on the streets.

Heard further complaint about that alleged traffic light at the east end of Main street. That thing either should be made efficient or removed. As it is today it stands as a constant invitation to accident. Most of the time the warning lights can not be seen at all by east and west bound traffic and car after car passes under it without the driver knowing that it is operating.

The matter has been called to the attention of officials before and it is high time that they did something about it.

A long afternoon of cyphering and then home, tuning in for the Louis and Farr championship match. Quite a fellow, that British dreadnaught. He fooled everyone by lasting the limit with the Bomber and blasting the general belief in sports circles that no one could stand before his dusky maulers. The scrivener's confidence in Joe's prowess has been entirely missing since the Schmeling affair and I believe that any one of the last half dozen champs, starting with Dempsey, could have flattened Joe without turning a hair. However, I was as much surprised as anyone that Tommy Farr lasted out the evening with the champ.

After the fight a raid on the refrigerator, cleaning up the remnants of Sunday's chicken and washing it down with a great beaker of milk.

LOUIS RETAINS HIS HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE, BUT THAT'S ABOUT ALL

LOUIS LOSES PRESTIGE AFTER FRAY WITH FARR

Welsh Battler Forces Big Detroit Through 15 Rounds

DECISION IS JEERED

British Champion To Stay In U. S. For While

By HENRY McLEMORE
NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(UP)—Joe Louis, the brown boy from Alabama, still held the world's heavyweight boxing championship today, but that was about all.

His glamor was gone. No one spoke of him as the "dynamite" fighter. No one compared him to the stubble-bearded Dempsey of Toledo. No one thought of him as a ruthless executioner, with an ax concealed in each knotted fist.

Because, last night, under the white lights, and in the sticky heat of Yankee stadium, he barely—oh so barely—eked out a 15-round decision over Tommy Farr of Tony Pandey, Wales. Joe's margin was so thin that when his arm was raised at the finish, 33,469 customers greeted him with such thunderous boos that he held his arms aloft scarcely a second lowering them and covering his ears. The boo was a strange cry to him—he who had always been an idol—and he seemed a little frightened. And, as if to get away from it all, the champion, his face badly swollen, his fists bandaged, caught a plane shortly after midnight and sped home to Detroit at 200 miles an hour.

Perhaps he felt, as did all the spectators and critics, that he had won—and lost. And that Farr had lost—and won.

Farr Standing at 15

Louis was a very ordinary workman last night. In his first defense, and against a challenger held so lightly the odds against him were 10,12, and even 15 to 1 at ring time, he could do nothing. Thousands were bet that Louis would knock out the little known Welshman in the first round, but when the electric scoreboard above the ring flashed "Round 15" there was Farr, standing out in the middle of the ring, waiting for the champion to come out.

And when the champion came out Farr, trained in the circus and carnival booths of the old country, tore into him, using his last bit of strength to paw at Louis with lefts and rights.

At the finish of the fight, when he stretched out on a rubbing table, and held out his hands to have the bandages cut off, Louis complained of injured fists, and said that the hurts, sustained early in the fight, had prevented him from scoring a knockout. His handlers pointed to a swollen knuckle on his right hand—spoke knowingly of a contusion of the metatarsal knuckle. They said Joe got it in the third round, when he bounced a right off Farr's skull, and that had it not happened the champion surely would have finished the challenger in the seventh round. Louis said Farr couldn't hit—that he was not hurt at any time. Yet even as he spoke his staff of repairmen applied ice packs to his right eye and cheek.

Schmeling's Name Heard

Louis said the injury to his right hand—the one he used to put Braddock away two months ago—definitely ended any chance of his fighting Max Schmeling this year. When Schmeling, who watched the fight from a ringside seat, was told of this, he shrugged and said:

"I do not care for alibis. Neither does the public. Did you hear the big applause the people gave me when I was introduced? The people, they are tired of seeing me given a run around. Soon Louis will have to fight me, and I will knock him out. Easy, I knock him out. He is finished."

There were no alibis of any sort from the Farr camp. Neither Farr nor any handler would criticize the decision. Tommy paid tribute to Louis as a clean, fair fighter, and a strong puncher. Asked if he thought the decision was unfair, Tommy said:

"I will let the American people decide that. I am satisfied, you thought I was a clown, and couldn't fight. I proved I could. I am very happy."

He should be. From the moment he stepped off the boat until he stepped in the ring, the onetime coal miner with the pock-marked face was ridiculed. He took it all like a game guy, and last night he fought like a dead-game guy. He made such a scrap of it that if he hadn't been a "bleeder" the chances are he would today be the champion of the world.

Skin Milk-White

He bled because most of his life was spent deep in a coal mine—where the sun never had a chance to harden his skin. He came into the ring with milk-white skin. Early in the fight a left hook tore open the wound under his right eye that he suffered in training, and shortly after a ripping right sliced his left cheek.

For 15 rounds Farr fought the perfect fight for a man who lacks a knockout punch. He never left

McGee Wins to Advance Red Birds to Top Rung

BY UNITED PRESS

A ninth inning rally, which produced two runs, enabled Columbus to defeat Indianapolis 6 to 4, and take undisputed possession of the lead in the American Association. Two-base hits by Rizzo and Seibert contributed to the Red Birds' victory. McGee was the winning pitcher.

Toledo's defensive bulwark went to pieces and Louisville had little trouble in winning by an 8 to 4 score. The Mud Hens committed five errors, and dropped themselves out of the league lead by their fielding miscues. Eisenstat, who pitched for the Colonels, was seldom in trouble and scattered eight Toledo hits.

A clugging fray found Milwaukee running roughshod over St. Paul to the count of 12 to 5, in the only other game played. Washington, Saint outfielder, hit four doubles to tie the league record held jointly by a number of players. The winning Brewers gathered 19 hits.

The Kansas City-Minneapolis game was rained out.

Today's Schedule
Kansas City at Minneapolis.
Toledo at Louisville.
Columbus at Indianapolis, night.
Milwaukee at St. Paul.

TITLE PLAYOFF DELAYED DURING HEATED DEBATE

The playoff for the second half title of the Tri-Country Recreation league will be resumed this evening at 6 o'clock as a result of an argument that concluded Monday night's game between Coca Cola and Container Corporation athletes.

The score was 3-1 in favor of the strawboard outfit in the sixth frame. The softdrinks had two runners on base and two were out. A high fly was hit and, just as Buck Hutchinson was to catch it for the final out, a Coca Cola runner collided with him. The ball fell safely and two runs scored to tie up the fray. Interference was ruled thus ending the inning with the score still 3-1 in favor of the Containers. The Coca Cola complained about this ruling. Arguments followed, and darkness fell ending play.

George Hammel, league prexy, called both teams to start another game at 6 p. m. Tuesday.

The playoff with the Cooper Oils of Commercial Point will start next Monday evening.

still, never offered Louis a shot at a set target. First he would move to the right, then to the left. Now he'd fight in a crouch, now he'd move in from an upright stance. He feinted with everything—feet, hands, head, and body. Louis missed dozens of times, as he floundered in the wake of the shifty Welshman. And it was Farr who made the fight. Time and again he moved quickly in, to belabor Louis with rights to the chin, and jolting punches inside. And often he drove Louis into the ropes, and kept the champion there.

The fight proved that Louis, a devastating force against a slow, awkward foe, can easily be handcuffed by one with speed, savvy, and courage. He never had seen anyone who fought like Farr, and he didn't have an answer. Often he stood blinking in the middle of the ring as the challenger darted in and out, to the right and to the left.

He was easy to hit. Tommy hit Joe many smacks on the chin, and had he possessed the power of a Schmeling most surely would have won by a knockout.

Farr to Remain
Farr, who was "made" in defeat, is expected to remain in this country for several months. Promoter Mike Jacobs has several battles planned for him, and one of them undoubtedly is a return shot at the championship.

China has one thing in its favor. A defensive bayonet is just as deadly as an aggressive one.

About This And That In Many Sports

A Football Notice!

Jack Landrum is due in town today to arrange final details for the distribution of football equipment to his 1937 squad : : Aspirants to positions on the team are asked to call at the high school between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. Wednesday to receive equipment : : Practices will get under way in earnest Thursday with only two weeks remaining until the first game with Groveport here on Sept. 17 . . . . .

To Replace Henry

Landrum's biggest job will be to develop someone to take Don Henry's place : : Others lost from last year's squad are Weldon, Good, Adkins, Lindsey, Hosler, Mills, Denny and Jack Brown : : : : Returning from the 1936 outfit are Captain Earl Garner, Jackson, Rooney, Cooper, Noggle, Arledge, Fickard, Bowsher, Stebelton, Merriman, Nelson, Harden, Osborn, Heffner, Smalley, Walters, Hays, and Orr . . . . .

Farr Surprises

Tommy Farr, the Welshman from way down under, took everything Joe Louis could offer Monday evening, but he came out second best in their world's heavyweight title contest : : The Detroit Bomber hit Farr too often for the Welshman to have a chance at the title, but Mr. Louis knows that he was in a fight : : Just how the Welshman rated the contest in the first place is what gets ye janitor : : If gaining a victory over Maxie Baer entitles a pug to a title chance then you boys can start lining up on the left : : Baer is about the easiest thing on two feet since Mr. Louis plastered him : : We wonder if Max Schmeling will now win the title chance he has been deserving for quite a while . . . . .

SETTING UP A TRUMP

COMPELLING the declarer to use a high card for ruffing purposes may be the only way to set up a trump trick for yourself, especially if you have some such holding as Q-J alone or J-10 and another. In such a situation, leading a card which both your partner and the declarer will surely ruff may result in your partner using a high enough one to make the declarer come up with a still higher one.

Walter Jacobs of Chicago was one West player who defeated South's contract of 4-Spades. After cashing the two club tricks he realized that both East and South were out of that suit. With his J-10-6 holding in trumps he reckoned that if East could force one of the two top honors out of the South hand, the contract could be set. He therefore led the club 2 to the third trick. On this East played the spade 8, which South was obliged to win with the spade K. This enabled West to make a trump trick, which together with the two club tricks and the diamond A defeated the declarer's contract.

FREIGHTER PLANS ATTEMPT TO RUN JAPS' BLOCKADE

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 31 — (UP) A battered old freighter, the Hai Da, was loaded with 5,000 tons of sulphur consigned to China for making gunpowder and was being prepared today for an attempt to run the Japanese blockade of Chinese ports.

Aboard was a Chinese crew of 28 men, commanded by a Norwegian skipper, Capt. F. C. Norvick, who has sailed the China Sea for many years. While guards patrolled the docks about the ship, American workmen installed a powerful radio set and the crew loaded an extra supply of coal for the extra zig-zag route that the ship will have to take. Capt. Norvick was assisted by K. G. Yank, 28-year-old Cantonese, who commented philosophically: "Maybe, maybe not, I get killed. China needs the gunpowder."

The crew crossed from China on a passenger liner several months ago, boarded the Hai Da in New York and came here via Galveston, Tex.

U. S. Refugee Ship Bombed Nearing Shanghai

THIS is the Dollar Liner President Hoover, which was bombed by Chinese planes as it neared Shanghai to evacuate additional Americans caught in the Sino-Japanese "war". The ship was bombed as it neared the confluence of the Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers. It was en route to Shanghai from Manila for its second load of refugees. It had taken nearly 1,000 to Manila 10 days previously. Seven members of the crew and three passengers were injured when four bombing planes loosed bombs. The Chinese aviators evidently mistook the liner for a Japanese troop ship in the dusk.

HEALTH OFFICER MOVES TUESDAY TO COURTHOUSE

Dr. Blackburn To Assume His Duties Wednesday, Succeeding Kerns

NEW BUILDING PREPARED

Minor Adjustments Asked By Commissioners

The county board of health office was moved from W. Main street into the addition in the courthouse Tuesday. This office is the first being maintained outside the courthouse to be moved into the new addition. Others will be moved into the annex in the near future. So far no moving dates for the other offices have been set.

County commissioners, Harry W. Lum, architect, and Maxwell Kerns, P. W. A. inspector, visited the annex Monday afternoon. The commissioners ordered several minor adjustments.

Dr. Arthur D. Blackburn and Miss Margaret Hunsicker assume their duties as county health commissioner and nurse, respectively, Wednesday. Dr. Blackburn succeeds Dr. V. D. Kerns who is in private practice.

Dr. Kerns held his last meeting with the board of health Tuesday night for handling routine business. Only three members of the board were present.

The annex, started Feb. 1, will provide space for all county offices now located outside the courthouse. The first floor contains 10 rooms, the second floor six office rooms and two restrooms, and the basement two office rooms, two restrooms and the boiler room.
